Oil Embargo Lifted, Vice President Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford said today he understands the Arab oil embargo against the United States has been lifted and an official announcement is expected shortly.

"It's my understanding that the oil embargo has been lifted," Ford said in a televised interview.

The Vice President said he had talked earlier today with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger who has been leading efforts to have the Arab oil embargo, invoked since the Mideast war began last October, lifted.

"The particular announcement, the official announcement, will come at a later date, a day or two from now," Ford said.

Agreement to end the oil war against the United States, but not against the Netherlands, was reported after a meeting Wednesday of nine Arab oil ministers in a Tripoli hotel.

It was not announced officially because Libya remained firmly opposed to any easing of the embargo and refused to permit the announcement on its territory, the sources said.

A brief communique said the ministers adjourned "to consult their governments." A Libyan source said they would meet again Sunday in Vienna during a price-fixing session of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and may announce the Tripoli decision then.

Several participants in the meeting said a "positive decision" on the embargo was taken, but they declined to give details.

In Washington, a spokesman for the Nixon Administration indicated it would release reserve oil supplies to give the American economy a boost as soon as Arab oil starts heading for the United States again. But one high official of the Federal Energy Office said a key question was whether the Arabs would resume production at the pre-October level or maintain the cuts of 25 per cent or more they ordered to put pressure on countries not affected by the embargo.

Sources in Tripoli gave no indication whether full production would be restored. But Libya's undersecretary for petroleum affairs said he believed the embargo would remain in force against the Netherlands "because Rotterdam is a key oil port, and keeping pressure on the Netherlands is a way of keeping pressure on all of Europe."

Before the embargo was decreed on Oct. 17, the United States imported between 10 and 14 per cent of its oil from Arab states. The reported decision to start this oil flowing again was a major diplomatic victory for Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and for President Anwar Sadat of Egypt.

Sadat had campaigned vigorously for such action to reward the United States for its help in getting Israeli troops to withdraw from the Suez Canal and to spur American efforts to arrange a similar disengagement of Israeli and Syrian forces on the Golan Heights. He was opposed by Libya's fiery president, Col. Moammar Khadafi, and President Houari Boumedienne of Algeria. But he apparently won over King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, the key man since his country is the biggest supplier of Arab oil to the U.S.

Problems Remain Even If Oil Flows

WASHINGTON (AP) — The anticipated end of the five-month-old Arab oil embargo should relieve U.S. fuel shortages, but it probably won't bring back business-as-usual.

Arab spokesmen have already issued reminders that the embargo can be used again if things don't go well in the Middle East, and U.S. energy officials don't want the United States to be caught with an even greater dependence on Arab oil if that should happen.

Those two factors alone add up to the need, already expressed by U.S. energy officials, to keep saving fuel after the embargo ends.

Just how much the nation may have to save depends on factors not yet revealed by the Arabs after their meeting Wednesday in Tripoli.

A high Libyan official told a newsman the Arab nations decided to lift the embargo.

But he did not say when; or whether Arab production would return to pre-embargo levels; or whether it would be increased to meet rising U.S. demand; or whether Arab oil prices, tripled since September, may be reduced.

Counting tanker travel time, processing time and distribution time, it may take six to eight weeks for Arab oil to begin reaching the U.S. marketplace once the embargo ends.

U.S. officials estimate it could take up to three months for oil imports to return to preembargo levels.

But U.S. petroleum demand has been rising steadily each year; domestic production has stagnated, and officials say new demands can only be met by increased imports for the next few years, mainly from the Middle East.

If the Arabs decide not to increase production, the United States may have to conserve oil with increasing stringency until new U.S. energy resources can be developed.

On the other hand, if the Arabs make available unlimited oil imports, U.S. officials may still press fuel conservation to keep those imports down.

When the embargo struck last October, the United States depended on the Arabs for about 12 per cent of its petroleum, and the pinch hurt. It would hurt a lot more if a new embargo came after U.S. imports of Arab oil were allowed to reach 20 or 30 per cent.

That is why energy chief William E. Simon says his toughest job will be to carry through on present policies for fuel conservation and energy development after the embargo and, with it, the immediate emergency ends.

An end to the embargo would bring no relief at all to the problem of paying for foreign oil at the new, high prices. In fact, unless the prices were reduced, the increase of imports would only make the balance of payments problem worse.

Television Film Plane Crashes; 36 Aboard Dead

BISHOP, Calif. (AP) — A twin-engine chartered airplane carrying a television film crew smashed into a mountainside in the rugged eastern Sierra, killing all 36 persons aboard, officials said today.

A helicopter pilot who spotted the burning wreckage in mountainous terrain six miles east of here and landed at the scene said the Sierra Pacific Airlines Convair 440 had disintegrated.

"They were all dead," said Mike Antoniou. "All that we saw was a lot of burning. There was no apparent response to yells."

"It was a very black night. The plane was disintegrated. The biggest part I saw was the tail section. The bodies were burned very badly."

The propeller-driven plane was chartered by Los Angeles-based Wolper Productions for filming the television series, "Primal Man."

The flight was bound for Burbank, about 200 miles south of the crash scene, when it smashed into a ridge in darkness shortly after taking off from the Bishop airport Wednesday night, officials said.

A spokesman said the film crew had been in the area since Monday.

Stan Margulies, vice president of Wolper Productions, said the firm had chartered the plane to transport 31 persons from the cast and crew of "Primal Man" back home Wednesday night.

Mike Gray, a Wolper spokesman, said the passengers included writer-director Dennis Azzarella, actors, stuntmen and technicians.

One of the dead actors was identified as Janos Prohaska, 51, who has played animals in a variety of roles on television and in movies. His roles included the cookie-mooching bear on the Andy Williams TV show. His son also died in the crash.

Gray said the crew had traveled to the Mammoth Mountain resort area near Bishop because a snow setting was needed to film a Siberian tiger hunt by actors made up to portray Neanderthal men.

The sequence was to be included in the third segment of the four-part series on early man's struggle for survival, Gray said. The sequence was to have been shown May 2.

A tiger had been rented for the filming, but Margulies said the animal was to be returned to Los Angeles by truck.

The plane hit at the 7,000-foot level of the White Mountains, which range up to 8,800 feet high, according to reports from Inyo National Forest officials, the Inyo County sheriff, the Federal Aviation Administration and the Civil Air Patrol.

The weather was clear at the time of the crash at 8:24 p.m. PDT, said the FAA.

The FAA said the cause of the crash was not known. Officials said no known distress call was made.

An airlines spokesman in Bishop said two pilots, an observer pilot, a hostess and a passenger service representative were aboard.

Senate Approves Death Penalty Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has passed a bill designed to overcome the 1972 Supreme Court decision against the death penalty.

The bill, passed Wednesday by a 54-33 vote, would restore under certain circumstances the death penalty for treason, espionage or murder.

No early action on the bill is expected in the House, partly because its Judiciary Committee is occupied with an inquiry into the possible impeachment of President Nixon.

The vote, after two days of Senate debate, revealed sharply conflicting views over the value of the death penalty as a deterrent to crime.

Some opponents also questioned the constitutionality of the bill and others denounced it as morally repugnant.

Among those who voted against it were Sens. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., both of whom have had immediate members of their family murdered.

Submitted to Congress by Nixon a year ago, the bill is designed to overcome the Supreme Court ruling that the death penalty, as applied under existing laws, was unconstitutional.

A score of states have since passed measures to restore the death penalty, many of them similar to the bill approved by the Senate.

Shortly before passage, the Senate

tabled by a 68-21 vote an amendment by Kennedy to require the registration of all handguns and the licensing of their owners.

Also tabled 58 to 31, was another Kennedy amendment to ban the production and sale of "Saturday Night Specials" and other snub-nosed handguns.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., floor manager of the bill, said the injection of controversial gun-control measures was a tactic aimed at killing the legislation.

The bill would restore the death penalty for espionage, treason and certain other federal crimes, like kidnapping and airplane hijacking, resulting in death.

A death sentence would be mandatory if a jury or a judge, in a separate proceeding after a trial, found one or more aggravating factors and no mitigating factors.

But if any of the mitigating factors listed in the bill, like being under 18 years of age, were found, a death sentence would be barred.

Other mitigating factors include a defendant's having significantly impaired mental capacity, acting under unusual or substantial duress, being a relatively minor participant in the crime and not having been reasonably able to foresee that his conduct would cause a risk of death to another.

Patient Abuses Bared In Lima State Hospital Report

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Neglect and abuse of patients at Lima State Hospital for mentally disturbed criminals is detailed in a report released Wednesday by the Ohio attorney general.

The 135-page document, now before the U.S. District Court in Toledo, describes serious shortages of doctors, psychologists and social workers.

It discusses subhuman treatment of patients, many of whom are housed in 6-by-9 foot cells without running water or toilet facilities.

A staff psychologist tells how inadequate testing methods and reviews of records often lead to the indefinite commitment of persons who are not "insane."

Testimony from other staff members indicates that during the period of the investigation, August 1973-January 1974, there was little effort, or hope, for rehabilitation of the mildly disturbed or training for the mentally retarded.

The report climaxes a six-month investigation by the Ohio attorney general's office begun in the wake of a civil lawsuit filed in May, 1973, by a group of hospital inmates against hospital officials.

The findings of the report have been confirmed by attorneys for the patients, Atty. Gen. William Brown said.

In releasing the document Wednesday, Dr. Kenneth Gaver, director of the Ohio Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, noted several improvements at the facility since the report was completed.

Among those he said were the additions of three investigators and two ombudsmen to handle patient complaints, additional education classes and a review of food quality.

The hospital inmates have charged that their constitutional rights are being violated by their confinement without a guarantee of adequate medical or psychological treatment.

Because Ohio law requires that criminal psychopaths be judged "reasonably sane" before they can be released, the state must also provide the means for their recovery, the suit contends.

The suit is filed on behalf of all patients at Lima State Hospital, and the court's decision could significantly affect treatment standards at all state mental institutions, Brown said.

The investigation was conducted with full cooperation of the department of mental health and mental retardation, Brown said.

There are 11 physicians, eight staff psychologists, 10 social workers, 12 teachers and 14 nurses for Lima State's 731 patients.

The shortage of professional staff, blamed partly on low salaries, leads to maximum dependency on hospital attendants, the report said.

Attendants, who are required only to have a high school education and who receive mainly "on the job training," make decisions about medication, restraining a patient, special privileges, work assignments and punishment, the report shows.

"It is a commonly held belief that medication can sometimes be a punitive measure because it can be painful and discomforting for the patient," the report says.

"When dealing with an especially disturbed patient, attendants can obtain extra medication by submitting appropriate forms to the pharmacy when there is no physician available. On some wards, patient workers are assigned responsibilities by the attendants of dispensing medication to patients," it states.

According to an expert witness, Dr. Gerald Clark, many patients are overmedicated and prompt efforts should be made to reduce the number of patients receiving medication, the number of drugs used, and the amount of medication given, it continues.

Attendants, not the doctors or social workers, supervise the wards.

A "typical day in the life of a patient" consists of three meals a day, an infrequent recreation period outdoors, and sitting silently in a chair in a day hall.

In most cells, patients are not permitted to keep any personal affects. They are made to strip before entering cells at night. Many of the cells are not equipped with toilet facilities or running water.

Some attendants do not permit talking during meals, and patients must ask permission to smoke, drink coffee, or go to the restroom. Depending on the ward, some patients are locked in cells at night at 6 p.m. There is no light to read, so they sleep, the report says.

"On a few occasions, the attendant staff will 'shake down' their wards four or five times a month. During a shake down, patients are required to strip naked in the day halls and their cells are searched for contraband," the report said. "On one occasion, a patient's rosary beads were found in the toilet of his cell . . ."

Since 1971, but before the filing of the complaint, 71 attendants have been discharged or disciplined for engaging in physical brutality directed to patients, the report said.

Persons are admitted to Lima State Hospital if they plead insanity in the commission of a crime, or if they are sent by another institution or by parole authorities. Under law, a person convicted of a sex-related crime must be admitted for observation.

A staff doctor and psychologist see a patient a total of 2½ hours during the 30-day observation period. Then they testify in court as to the patients' mental health, the report says.

If a judge finds the patient to be a "psychopathic offender," "mentally retarded offender" or "mentally ill," he may commit him to Lima State Hospital indefinitely.

In this case the criminal sentence is suspended and patients have no right to a judicial review until the maximum time of the sentence runs out.

Psychologists testified that tests administered at the hospital are not adequate to determine psychopathic disorders. And Dr. Watkins "believes that the definition of psychopathic offender in . . . the Ohio Revised Code is inaccurate and is no longer considered clinically valid," the report said.

A staff psychologist is quoted in the report as saying if a person accused or convicted of a crime scored particularly low on the intelligence test, and was unable to support himself in society, he would probably be confined to Lima indefinitely.

There is no individualized treatment plan for patients, the report concludes. "One psychologist commented that having an individualized treatment program for a patient is an exception to the rule . . ." the report said.

Morale is poor among psychologists and social workers because of their apparent lack of influence over the treatment and dispensation of patient cases, the report shows.

Patients work 4-8 hours a day at menial or farming jobs and earn $10-$15 a month. The jobs are not related to rehabilitation, but to the manpower needs of the facility, the report says.

Patient workers feed, bathe and clean cells of secluded or restrained patients at no salary.

Some doctors believe mentally retarded persons do not belong at Lima State and should be transferred to training schools. This includes several juveniles at the hospital, the report says.

Only the chief of security, Thomas Larimore, indicated he has an adequate staff of 84 persons, the report said.

The guards man seven guard towers around the hospital, which is surrounded by a 13-foot fence topped by barbed wire.

Fry, Nolan Rap Gilligan On Money

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two candidates for governor have attacked the incumbent on money-related matters.

Rep. Charles E. Fry, R-75 Springfield, accused Gov. John J. Gilligan of "gross deception" in the distribution of state income tax revenues for higher education.

At a news conference in Akron, Fry said that of nearly $5 billion generated by the tax during the biennium, only three per cent, or $162 million, has been given to universities and colleges.

"I have been called by a number of students asking me to support a statewide march on the state capitol," Fry said. "I have advised these students to reconsider the plan . . . and to get involved with the upcoming primary election."

Speaking in Mansfield, Democrat James D. Nolan condemned the Gilligan administration for supporting a proposal in the legislature for raising the 8 per cent interest ceiling on home owners' interest rates.

"In a telephone survey of nearly a score of banks and savings and loan companies in northeastern Ohio, we find that there is ample money available for the purchase of homes," Nolan said.

"I call upon Gilligan to raise his voice strongly in opposition" to the proposal, Nolan said.

Taft, Metzenbaum Split On Gun Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio's two U.S. senators cast opposite votes Wednesday as the Senate passed 54-33 a bill to restore the death penalty for espionage, treason and certain other federal crimes.

Sen. Robert Taft Jr., a Republican, voted for the measure and Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, a Democrat, against.

Markets ZIP Code Usage Good By Local Mailers

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market slipped into a mixed pattern today after a brief early rally in response to the news that the Arab oil embargo apparently would be ended.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 1.72 at 889.94 after a rise of about 8 points in the first half-hour of the session. Advancing issues, however, hung on to a 7-to-5 lead over declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the expected resumption of Arab oil shipments to the United States had been "discounted" largely—anticipated in earlier advances—in the stock market. They said some traders appeared to be following a traditional practice of buying in anticipation of a favorable development, then cashing in on profits when the event actually occurred.

Howard Johnson, up 1/2 at 11%, was the Big Board's volume leader and one of several travel-related issues on the active list.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was up .86 at 101.84.

The Amex volume leader was Champion Home Builders, down 1/4 at 5 1/4.

ZIP Code Usage Good By Local Mailers

Postmaster Charles H. Walters today thanked postal customers in Circleville for their regular use of the Zip Code with mailing addresses.

"Customers in the 13-states Central Region in which Circleville is a part, lead the other four Postal Regions with an 89.1 per cent Zip Code usage. According to recent figures, the national average for Zip Code usage by mailers reached 87.3 per cent," Postmaster Walters said.

Postmaster Walters said the success of the Zip Code is well established. Its public acceptance has come a long way from that first day nearly 11 years ago when the program was launched in Washington with a special Ethel Merman version of 'Zip-A-Dee Doo-Dah' that was to be heard in thousands of promotional spots on radio and television around the country.

It was on July 1, 1963, that the Postal System's Zoning Improvement Program went into effect. There was an immediate furor over the advent of Zip Coding, but the people who predicted dire things for the future of the U.S. Mail as a result of adding five figures to an address have long since been proven wrong.

"Fortunately, there were those who also recognized that a growing population, a more mobile life style, and a growing volume of mail (it was 30 billion pieces in 1942, 49 billion in 1952, 67 billion in 1962, and now 90 billion) would require an addressing system more sophisticated than the one that had been used for the previous hundred years," Postmaster Walters said.

"There also had been great controversy in 1963, when the Post Office Department came up with the then radical concept that mail should be addressed by street and number. Before then, mail sent to a name in a city or town, that individual had to come to the post office to pick it up," he said.

He noted that fears that the Zip Code would speed the demise of the identity of American place names have proven groundless. "Just look through the current directory of post offices, and you'll find the continuing existence of such places as Alpha, Illinois; Gas, Kansas; Weeping Water, Nebraska; Zap, North Dakota; Tea, South Dakota; Luck, Wisconsin," he said.

"None has been endangered by the addition of the five-digit Zip Code as part of its mailing address. On the contrary, the residents of these places — as well as those who live in the most congested part of any metropolis — now can be located more quickly, more accurately, and at less cost than would be possible without the mechanized applications of Zip Coding."

Ellsberg Break-In Arraignment Held

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four men pleaded innocent today to a charge stemming from the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Counsel for one of the defendants told newsmen upon entering the courthouse that he expects to call President Nixon as a defense witness.

Entering innocent pleas were G. Gordon Liddy, Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio R. Martinez and Felipe De Diego.

They were charged with violating the civil rights of Dr. Lewis Fielding. Former presidential aides Charles W. Colson and John D. Ehrlichman pleaded innocent to the same charge when arraigned last Saturday. The six men were indicted by a federal grand jury on March 7.

The conspiracy charge carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Liddy, Martinez and Barker were defendants in the original Watergate break-in trial.

Henry Rothblatt, counsel for De Diego, a Miami realtor, told newsmen he intends to subpoena "every relevant witness."

Asked if that included the President, Rothblatt replied, "I think he'll be a very relevant witness."

Liddy was the last to arrive in the courtroom. In contrast to earlier appearances when he looked pale and gaunt, Liddy was tanned and fit. He was greeted enthusiastically by Barker, Martinez and De Diego.

All of the defense counsel indicated to U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell that they anticipated problems obtaining government records pertaining to the Ellsberg break-in. Gesell suggested they confer with the prosecutor's office before filing any motions.

A California state judge had ruled that Nixon was a relevant defense witness in the trial of charges returned by a Los Angeles County grand jury in connection with the same break-in. California prosecutors agreed to drop the charges after the federal grand jury had acted.

Gesell asked defense counsel to file motions within 10 days giving their suggestion for a trial date and whether they believe Ehrlichman should be tried separately. Ehrlichman also is charged with lying to the FBI and the grand jury.

Liddy is in custody, serving a sentence for contempt stemming from his refusal to testify before a grand jury.

De Diego's attorney said the defendant believes he was carrying out government orders when he participated in the Fielding office burglary.

Impeachment Group Avoids White House Confrontation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Judiciary Committee has headed off, at least for the moment, a confrontation with the White House over impeachment evidence.

Despite White House statements indicating stiffening resistance to committee requests for tapes and documents, Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., convinced members more time was needed to determine whether President Nixon will cooperate.

However, Rodino left no doubt that if Nixon refuses to part with the information being sought the committee will subpoena it.

Rodino said Wednesday that the material the committee wants is necessary to the investigation and the Constitution gives the committee an unchallenged right to it. Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., the committee's senior Republican, agreed.

"The requests made by the committee to date are very reasonable and relevant," Hutchinson said. "The White House should be totally cooperative with us."

However, the White House as yet has made no response to the committee's Feb. 25 request for tapes of conversations between Nixon and his top aides last year when the Watergate cover-up was unraveling.

And Tuesday White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler and Bryce Harlow, a presidential counselor, in separate blasts at the committee, served notice the White House will resist any requests for broad-scale access to its files.

Nixon has promised to give the committee everything on Watergate he gave to the grand jury. However, the committee is investigating many other areas besides Watergate.

Rodino persuaded Democratic members of the committee that further talks should be held between committee and White House lawyers before any move to subpoena White House evidence.

Although Rodino managed to at least postpone any action on a subpoena, he did not succeed in satisfying all committee members.

Shultz Quits Treasury Post Effective May

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon accepted with "a sense of personal regret" today the resignation of Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, effective in early May.

Announcing the impending departure of the last member of Nixon's original cabinet to still hold federal office, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said the President feels Shultz "has served with great distinction," starting as secretary of labor in 1969.

Noting that Shultz has talked several times of a desire to return to private life, Warren said the 53-year-old economist would continue to "assume special assignments" after leaving the Treasury post he has held since June 12, 1972.

Warren described Shultz as "a pillar of this administration and this government" and said Nixon has asked him to express "our enormous respect, affection and appreciation for Secretary Shultz."

Asked if Deputy Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, who also serves as the federal energy chief, would be in line to succeed Shultz, Warren said, "I won't go down a check list of names."

He added that Simon obviously is well regarded in administration circles.

Besides serving as Treasury chief, Shultz held the dual appointment of assistant to the President for economic affairs — a position he will also leave.

Vietnam Veteran Bonus Information Available

Pickaway County Veterans Service Officer, James P. Shea, has announced that he received preliminary information concerning the Ohio Vietnam Veterans Bonus. The information contains six points of vital interest, Shea stated.

Initial distribution of bonus application forms within Ohio will be made to county veterans' service officers. Only applications for use by living veterans will be available at that time.

Forms for use by next-of-kin of deceased veterans must be requested from bonus headquarters. Furthermore, all out-of-state requests will also be handled by the Columbus office.

When applications are ready, a definite time (zero hour), and a specified date (D-Day), will be designated for initial distribution to veterans presently residing in Ohio. This will ensure simultaneous distribution and no applicant will have a time advantage over any other.

With the cooperation of the Ohio National Guard, each county's bulk allocation of forms will be delivered over a weekend immediately preceding "D-Day".

It will be the direct responsibility of each county service officer to insure that no application forms are in the hands of any veteran-applicant before "Zero-Hour" on "D-Day".

To maintain the distribution plan, the county service officers only will assume the responsibility of coordinating further distribution of forms to other volunteer agencies in his county.

Indications seem to be, the local service officer said, that it will be another 45 days at least, before the bonus applications are printed, and "D-Day" is announced.

There will be plenty of advance information both by newspaper, radio, and by TV, so that all veterans will know exactly when they can secure their application blanks.

It is my plan, Shea continued, to keep my office open in the court house of an evening and on Saturday morning for at least two weeks to take care of the initial rush of applications, and, I also plan to have applications available, if possible, in Ashville, New Holland and Williamsport.

In the meantime, Shea said, it would be wise for all veterans who served in Vietnam, or who had any combat pay in Southeast Asia to bring their DD 214 (Report of Separation) to my office in the basement of the court house. Unless that DD 214 shows exactly how many days was served in Vietnam, we will have to write a letter to the proper service department to secure the information.

We have been doing this for the past 45 days, and the indications are that it takes at least 35 days for the veteran to get a reply. If the requests are made inside of the next two weeks, the veteran stands a good chance of getting the exact Vietnam service time back before the Bonus applications are available.

For further information, or if you have any questions on the Vietnam Bonus, contact the local service officer, located in the basement of the court house, or phone 474-3650.

U.S., Russia Compete In Modern Arms Klambach Linked To Dairy Funds

EDITOR'S NOTE — Pentagon planners believe conventional military forces are an increasingly important deterrent to war in a nuclear age. Here is a report on the strength of the United States and of the Soviet Union in troops and conventional weapons.

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has about four million men under arms, twice as many as the United States. The Pentagon seeks to offset those numbers with technical superiority.

Russian armed manpower and weapons have been increasing steadily, while U.S. conventional military strength now has leveled off after five years of severe cutbacks.

With each nation capable of inflicting colossal nuclear damage on the other, U.S. planners believe conventional forces are even more important to deter lesser war and to repel limited threats.

Strategic arms limitation talks are aimed at restricting nuclear offensive weapons, but there are no moves to put a lid on conventional ground, sea and air forces of the world's two biggest military powers—although NATO and Warsaw Pact diplomats are trying to negotiate a mutual thinning-out in Central Europe.

On the ground, the Soviets hold a huge edge in armor and firepower, with four times as many tanks and three times as many artillery pieces.

At sea, the Russian navy outnumbered the U.S. Navy in major warships and submarines. But the U.S. Navy will start recovering from a steep decline later this year when its modernization program begins paying off in new destroyers and other surface vessels.

In the air, there is a virtual standoff in numbers between the Soviet air force and the combined fighter and bomber fleets of the U.S. Air Force, Navy and Marines. Each side has about 4,800 planes in these categories.

The Pentagon's approach is to try to offset or overcome Soviet superiority in quantity by exploiting U.S. technology to gain a qualitative advantage in weapons, aircraft and other equipment.

But the Russians have been driving to overcome U.S. leads in technology. In some cases, Soviet hardware surpasses its American counterparts.

The quality score is far from clear-cut.

For example, the United States is still rated well ahead of the Soviet Union in antisubmarine warfare and superior in tactical air support of ground troops. On the other hand, the Russian navy has formidable ship-to-ship missiles, while the U.S. Navy is straining to catch up. Soviet artillery outranges U.S. field guns.

The Mideast war last October pointed up the excellence of Soviet-made antitank and newer antiaircraft missiles such as the SA-6—and, conversely, the effectiveness of advanced U.S. weapons like the TV-guided Maverick tank-killing missile.

The Russians apparently give their ground, sea and air forces at least as high a priority as do their Pentagon opposites. By all available intelligence indicators, the Soviets have been lavishing resources on their conventional forces.

"We have seen a growth in real sophistication in Soviet weaponry and equipment in recent years," said Gen. Creighton Abrams, Army chief of staff. "...They spend very heavily to gain even a small advantage, to incorporate nice-to-have features which we forego because of cost."

Despite Abrams' complaints about cost constraints, the Army is pushing dozens of development projects, including a new main battle tank, two new howitzers, four new helicopters and improved antiaircraft missiles.

The Army's research chief, Lt. Gen. John R. Deane Jr., said: "Our answer to their use of quantity must be quality."

But the Soviets are sustaining both quantity and quality, especially in Eastern Europe.

Even while tying down half a million troops in the Far East opposite China, Russia has kept some 450,000 men and more than 8,000 tanks in East Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

These Soviet forces are the backbone of the 925,000 men and 15,500 tanks deployed by Warsaw Pact nations in position to strike into NATO's central region.

In the past few years, U.S. intelligence has reported that the Russians have been putting more of these troops on wheels, with some 4,000 additional armored personnel carriers sent to the Warsaw Pact area.

The Russians are also stressing self-propelled field artillery to keep pace with faster moving ground troops. A new Soviet armed assault helicopter appeared in East Germany last fall.

Holding the pivotal position on NATO's central front are 190,000 U.S. ground troops and about 2,000 tanks in West Germany. Counting the Americans, NATO countries and France have some 890,000 troops and 6,000 tanks available to defend their region.

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, while acknowledging Warsaw Pact numerical superiority in tanks, claims that NATO has important advantages in tank destroyers, antitank weapons and logistics support.

However, geography is on the side of Russia when it comes to the all-important ability to reinforce battlefield forces in Eastern Europe quickly.

Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, says the Soviet Union "appears to be making a determined effort to erase the longheld advantage in the ground attack role held by U.S. tactical air forces."

The Russians are producing a series of new-generation fighters and fighter bombers, which are expected to replace at least half of today's models over the coming five years.

Moorer said Soviet tactical air forces "hold major quantitative and some qualitative advantages in the air superiority role."

However, he predicted that U.S. tactical air will emerge ahead during the 1980s. Moorer pinned his prediction chiefly on continued acquisition of the Air Force's F15 fighter, due to become operational in 1976, and the Navy's F14 fighter, which is already entering the force.

The Mideast war provided a test for both U.S. and Soviet airlifts. Both did well, according to American experts. But the American task was tougher because it covered over 6,000 miles, while the Russian flights were much shorter.

The experience, particularly the denial of base stopover privileges by some U.S. allies, has convinced Schlesinger that U.S. long-range airlift capacity must be expanded. He has proposed stretching C141 transport planes and modifying commercial jumbo jets to carry military cargo in emergencies.

Apart from Russia's surge in nuclear striking power, the growth of the Soviet navy within the past decade has evoked the deepest concern at the Pentagon.

Some Western naval authorities have declared the U.S. Navy already in second place. Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr. told Congress that "the balance ... has shifted during the past five years, and right now we are at a very critical point."

Others, however, are less gloomy. While indicating concern, Adm. Moorer said in early March that "the U.S. still has the edge in the global reach of our fleets, through our carrier and amphibious task forces."

But Moorer cautioned that the Soviet Union is building "a modern and increasingly powerful naval force ..."

Schlesinger said: "I do not subscribe to the alarmist statements alleging the current superiority of the Soviet fleet."

The U.S. Navy is bottoming out after five years of retiring older ships in large numbers. This year the Navy will have only 174 major combatant surface ships, compared to the Soviet Union's 221.

For the next several years, new U.S. ships will be coming out of the yards faster than old ships are retired. The surface combat fleet should climb back to about 230 ships.

The Navy is embarking on production of entirely new classes of austere patrol frigates, minicarriers, hydrofoils and other craft, hopefully at lower prices.

In submarines, the Russians outnumber the United States by about 315 to 115. But many of the Soviet undersea craft are older diesel-powered models.

The first of a group of advanced U.S. nuclear attack subs soon will become operational. Navy experts claim they are superior to the best Soviet sub because of better quietness and sonar.

The Soviets also are modernizing their underwater force and will maintain a 2 to 1 edge in numbers by the early 1980s, according to U.S. calculations.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Former dairy official Dwight L. Morris says he'll repeat under oath his contested second-hand story that Herbert W. Klambach agreed to kill a government antitrust suit for a $300,000 donation to President Nixon's 1972 campaign.

Morris, former secretary of the Texas-based Associated Milk Producers, Inc., has told Watergate investigators that the giant cooperative's president, John Butterbrodt, told him about the abortive deal in April 1972, after it had fallen through.

Morris quoted Butterbrodt as saying that Klambach, who was a top Nixon fund raiser, called the deal off because of unfavorable publicity surrounding the administration's handling of another antitrust case, against the International Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Morris is scheduled to take the stand today in an open court proceeding in the antitrust case which he says the co-op's top leadership tried to kill.

Interviewed by telephone at his 89-acre cattle farm near Siloam Springs, Ark., Morris said he would stick to his story even though the co-op's lawyers have branded it as false and untrue and even though Butterbrodt denies it.

But federal investigators say they have evidence to support Morris' hearsay testimony, evidence that includes $150,000 in checks, apparently intended for political donations, which were signed by co-op officials but voided without explanation.

Klambach couldn't be reached for comment Tuesday. An associate, who asked not to be named, said Klambach hadn't been aware of Morris' allegation. Klambach recently pleaded guilty to a two-count Watergate indictment charging him with running an illegal fund-raising effort in 1970 and of selling an ambassador's appointment for political donations.

Bonus For Skills

Army recruiters are checking the unemployed and offering some of them faster than usual promotion and higher pay to enlist. No, this isn't a plot to reduce unemployment and satisfy the manpower requirements of the volunteer Army.

Recruiters are only interested in persons with certain skills which the Army needs, and they ingeniously have coupled that interest with the needs of the unemployed. Under a "Stripes for Skills" program, the Army is looking for people already skilled in some 100 mechanical or technical jobs.

Prospects who pass the usual tests, plus an additional one to show their competence in one of the required skills, are offered extra credits upon induction. That bonus enables them to start their way up the promotion ladder in a shorter time.

No one currently employed is eligible for the program. The Army is not eager to compete with private employers for manpower. But if it can save itself the time and expense of training in job skills, it is worth the extra incentive.

Global Price List

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — People ... Places ... Prices ...

A Swiss bank, the UnionBank of Switzerland, has been thoughtful enough to issue a booklet every traveler should have in his pocket when and if he ventures away from hearth, home, and the only kind of money he understands. It is titled "Prices and Earnings Around the Globe." It's a comparison of purchasing power in 37 cities.

For example did you know that an average expensive unfurnished 3-room apartment in New York rents for $550? The price for a similar pad in Lisbon is $178; in Tokyo $1,110.

A typical restaurant meal in New York — without drinks, and not at "21" — costs $10.20, $11.05 in Montreal, and an unnerving $1.16 in Bombay. A yearly subscription to the New York Times (home delivered) is $117 in New York city. The price for the Chicago Tribune is $61.80, but you can get Helsinki's Helsingin Sanomat for only $27.79. And then hire a beautiful $10,000-a-year secretary to read it to you.

TV sets are cheapest in the U.S., but clothing is cheaper in London than New York. Scandinavians pay more than six cents for every cigarette.

"Devaluation, particularly of the U.S. dollar, led to a situation in which, for competitive reasons, prices on the export markets could not be adjusted sufficiently to keep pace with parity changes," the bank observes. "That is why at the end of July and the beginning of August, 1973, the Volkswagen could be bought more cheaply in New York, San Francisco, London, Luxembourg and Mexico City than in Dusseldorf, where it is made."

"On the other hand, the Volkswagen costs $6,259 in Tel Aviv, $9,094 in Istanbul and $11,071 in Bogota." (Ed. Note: Bah HumBUG.)

You can ride a bus for miles and miles in Bogota for three cents. But when you wake up, you're still in Bogota. A personnel manager, let's say, holding down a $20,000-a-year job in Stockholm can expect to pay 48 per cent of it in taxes. The bank reveals no great secret when it says that the U.S. has the world's highest living standard.

Geneva and Zurich rate second and third. But neither has a navy to protect you.

Went to a Maria Callas concert at Carnegie Hall the other night and guess what? She showed up!

A few weeks before that Miss Callas was callous enough to call off her long-heralded engagement so abruptly that the fancy folk assembled in the lobby of the beautiful old music hall were left with nothing to do except sneer at the others' gowns and dress shirts. Seems the diva had a cold, her manager said.

Callas had a more valid reason to duck her return bout: the death that afternoon of her great friend Sol Hurok. But she showed and knocked everybody for a loop. In between arias,

Editions Of The Past

MARCH 1944
30 Years Ago

Chillicothe historian David Webb published a booklet, "Circleville Reminiscences". The material was taken from the scrapbook of the late G. F. Wittich and included a description of Circleville from 1825 to 1840.

Miller M. Fissell, on leave from the police department for a year, submitted his resignation to the city safety director as the leave of absence ended.

Plans for developing postwar airports for Circleville and Ashville were divulged in a report by Ohio Bureau of Aeronautics. This line would connect with a class "A" airfield at Chillicothe, linking other airports.

Householders in Circleville and Pickaway County were urged to save old toothpaste and shaving cream tubes and return them to their druggist. The used tubes contained about 90 per cent pure tin to be salvaged.

A St. Patrick's Day dance was held at Memorial Hall for the benefit of Youth Canteen. Servicemen from Lockbourne Air Force Base were guests of the affair, sponsored by Circleville Jaycees.

Recycling Program Proves Successful

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Owens-Illinois, Inc., says it bought back more than 163 million pounds of old bottles and jars for recycling at its glass container plants last year.

The company said it paid more than $1.6 million, at a rate of a penny a pound or $20 a ton, to community and non-profit groups for enough waste glass bottles to fill more than 3,200 railroad freight cars.

Decision Helps Pollution Effort

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A recent court decision involving the Blue Creek Coal Co. of New Philadelphia means the state doesn't have to wait for serious environmental damage to occur before it can act in pollution cases, state Natural Resources Director William Nye said today.

The firm was charged with violating Ohio's strip mine law after inspectors discovered acid water in one of its collection pits northwest of New Philadelphia.

Nye said although serious damage had not occurred, there was a threat to plant and animal life and to the quality of water in streams and lakes.

Writer Finds Home

"I think I've found just the one for you, Mrs. Potterfield."

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I have been told that I will soon need an operation on my prostate.

Some friends of mine in my age group were speaking about two different types of operation for this problem.

Can you "un-confuse" me?

Mr. H.D.A., Ala.

Dear Mr. A.: "Un-confuse" is a marvelous term for those who seek clarification!

When once the decision for surgery is established, the choice of the method depends on a number of factors. All of these are taken into consideration before the time of surgery. The age of the patient, his general physical condition, the state of his heart and vascular system, and the safety of anesthesia may make one operative procedure preferable to another.

One operation, the Transurethral Prostatic Resection (TUR) is done directly through the urethra, the tube that normally carries urine from the bladder.

A second type is known as the "supra-pubic" operation in which an operation is made from the outside, just above the pubis. Sometimes this operation is done in one stage, or in two stages, depending on the surgeon's findings and the specific needs of each patient.

Whichever procedure is done, you must be assured that the chances for the safety and success of the operation are excellent.

Is it possible to X-ray the inside of the heart and know if it is in good condition?

Miss R. E., Maine

Dear Miss E.:

A method known as "angiocardiology" can now reveal almost every crevice in the inside of the heart. Special dyes injected into the bloodstream can be tagged and followed to clearly outline the inside of the heart and the blood vessels that lead to and from it.

By other methods it is even possible to take samples of blood from each of the four chambers of the heart, to study the balance between oxygen and carbon dioxide.

These X-rays, in addition to the routine X-rays of the chest and the clinical judgment of the doctor, can unravel even the most difficult problems of the heart and the vascular system.

500 LSH Patients Could Be Released

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—More than 500 patients at Lima State Hospital could be ordered released due to a lawsuit seeking to establish a constitutional right to treatment, the attorney general's office said Tuesday.

A 130-page document, result of a special investigation of treatment and rights of prisoners at Lima State, has been filed with U.S. District Court here.

The investigation, made by the attorney general's office and lawyers

Avis Sold By ITT

NEW YORK (AP)—American Express Co. has agreed in principle to take over Avis, Inc., a subsidiary of International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

The proposed $150 million transaction announced Tuesday would implement a 1971 Justice Department decree ordering ITT to divest itself of its 52 per cent interest in Avis, as well as other subsidiaries.

Under terms of the proposal, ITT and the public shareholders of Avis would receive $25 for each share of Avis common stock, an ITT spokesman said. At present, public shareholders own 2.9 million shares of Avis stock, and ITT owns 3.1 million shares.

The transaction is subject to the approval of the Justice Department and the boards of the directors of Avis, American Express and ITT, the spokesman said. It must also be approved by two-thirds of the public shareholders of Avis common stock.

Avis, Inc., second only to Hertz in the car rental business, operates a fleet of 119,000 vehicles in more than 2,800 locations here and abroad.

Propose Expressway Across Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Columbus Service Director Richard Jackson proposed Tuesday a six-lane expressway to be constructed to connect a planned downtown convention center with Port Columbus International Airport.

The highway could take up to 12 years to build, Jackson said. He had no estimate of the cost, but said it would be in the "millions of dollars."

Quebec is North America's only walled city.

About 85 billion Lincoln pennies have been minted since 1900.

with Advocates for Basic Legal Equality (ABLE), is the basis for a suit seeking to establish that it is unconstitutional to commit a person to an institution until he is rehabilitated, and then not provide the treatment.

The ABLE group is a publicly and privately funded law-reform firm appointed by the court to represent the patients. The document filed with the court represents an agreement between the state and the patients' lawyers on the findings of their investigation.

"Asking the court to set standards of care and treatment is a bold step," Atty. Gen. William J. Brown said. "The ruling of the court in this matter will set a precedent for Ohio and probably for the nation."

The suit also alleges that classes of criminals are created when mental patients are denied parole and the right to a hearing until they have served maximum sentences.

The suit further charges that due process of law guaranteed by the Constitution is denied a mental patient when he is confined beyond his maximum sentence without a new trial.

Asst. Ohio Atty. Gen. Andrew J. Ruzichko and ABLE Atty. Jerry E. Lackey agreed the court may decide to give the Mental Health Department time to make changes at Lima State before ordering release of prisoners. Rulings are not expected for months, but the lawyers speculated that as many as 500 of the 700 prisoners might be released.

However, they said it is more likely most would be returned to prisons they came from. A smaller number might be transferred to lower security institutions. Non-criminals might be sent home for treatment.

The investigation took issue with treatment of prisoners at Lima, attitudes of doctors and staff, abuse of medication and use of inhumane punishment.

Dispensing Setup For Gasoline Eyed

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Cincinnati City Manager E. Robert Turner has recommended purchase of a $600,000 automated gasoline dispensing system to curb losses from the city's fuel supply.

He made the request of city council Tuesday.

Turner reported earlier that about 600,000 gallons of gasoline was unaccounted for in 1973.

He blamed poor bookkeeping and pilferage.

Bill Eases Strip Mine Requirements

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Interior Committee Wednesday approved by a 20-18 vote an administration-backed amendment to relax strip mining reclamation requirements.

The amendment would allow state regulatory agencies to ease requirements if coal mining companies could not obtain the necessary equipment to meet them.

In such cases, the companies would not be bound by the bill's requirement that they return the mine site to its original contour and not dump earth down slope from the mine.

They would still be required to leave a "stable surface configuration."

Rep. Roy A. Taylor, D-N.C., who introduced the amendment, said it was part of the administration package and was drafted by the Interior Department.

Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., said the amendment was "intolerable."

"We would be inviting the coal companies to get involved in more operations than they have the equipment to comply with," Melcher said.

Taylor conceded this would be possible, but argued, "We should not be drawing up legislation in such a way as to preclude an individual in the coal business from opening up another mine."

Problems Plague State Farmers

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — Ross County farmer Allen Myers can see inflation nipping at his profit gains of the past year and it makes him uneasy.

"Really, inflation didn't hurt us last year," the 37-year-old corn and hog farmer said. "Our grain prices increased first, but now our expenses are starting to move up."

The Ohio State University graduate added, "It's kind of scary when prices increase. There isn't a heck of lot we can do to combat inflation."

This year, Myers has seen prices for his fertilizer, fuel, equipment, seed grain and labor increase and undercut some of the gains he made on a better-than-average corn market last fall.

Myers can tick off the inflation that has hit him in 1974.

"Anhydrous ammonia has increased from $85 a ton to $170," he said.

"Before, once you purchased the fertilizer, you didn't have to pay the bill until summer. Now they want you to pay in 30 days."

Myers needs anhydrous ammonia to put on the 1,110 acres of corn he plans to plant this spring. But he has had problems finding a suitable price.

"Anhydrous ammonia is extremely hard to get right now, and I have heard stories of its going anywhere from $200 to $300 ton," he said. "If you don't have it setting on your farm, you're not assured of it."

Right now, Myers has none. "If we can't get any, we'll switch from corn to soybeans or reduce our per-acre application of fertilizer, which will reduce our production."

His cost for a combination of nitrogen and phosphorous has jumped from $96 a ton to $168. Potash has not been as bad, going from $55 a ton to $75.

Higher fuel costs have hit him as hard as the fertilizer.

"In 1973, we paid 32 cents a gallon for gasoline," he said. "Right now they just put on the big increase and it's costing us 52 cents a gallon."

"Diesel fuel, which is our big volume fuel, has gone from 16 cents a gallon in 1973 to 37 cents."

Myers uses gasoline for his trucks and small tractors, and diesel fuel for his larger tractors and combines.

His costs for repairing broken down equipment has hit him two ways.

"Repair costs are kind of hard to determine," he said, "but I estimate they have gone up 30 per cent over last year. They are using cheaper material and it's costing more. The items don't last as long, so it's hitting us two ways."

Myers said his costs for seed grain have jumped by 15 to 20 per cent over last year.

Myers has three hired hands who live on the farm and help him.

"We pay weekly or monthly salaries, furnish a house and pay most of the utilities," he said. "Based on utilities increases and other expense, our labor costs have increased by 25 per cent and we haven't given them a penny more."

Myers said his future depends on the continued high market prices for corn.

"If the prices drop back, it would put us in a serious circumstance," he said. "I don't know what we can do to soften the blow. We have no way of controlling the prices we get."

As a farmer, Myers knows market prices "can drop as fast as they go up."

On a regular basis about 100 young people are involved in service to their community at Berger Hospital, Bloodmobile and in formation of a 4-H Club with training in First Aid and Nursing Services under direction of the local Red Cross.

Ford Venture Into Drilling Paying Off

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A Ford Motor Co. official says Ford's "unusual entrance...into the gas-drilling business...has turned out to be a venture that is paying off."

Donald Bastian, vice president-manufacturing group, said Wednesday Ford went into the gas-drilling business in Morgan County to get fuel required to operate the Ohio Truck Plant at Avon Lake.

Under authorization from the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio, Bastian said, Ford will deliver about 2.3 billion cubic feet of gas a year to Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc.

Columbia is to deliver 50 per cent of the gas developed in Ford's fields in southeastern Ohio to the Ohio Truck Plant.

The other 50 per cent is to be made available to the public.

Bastian said Redman Oil Co., Inc., was Ford's partner in the Morgan County venture and was responsible for drilling the wells and installing 26 miles of pipe from the wells to Columbia Gas facilities at Zanesville.

Ford said when the Ohio Truck Plant was acquired in 1972 plans called for use of propane. But shortages of propane gas prompted the natural gas exploration project.

Gradison Set For Campaign

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Willis D. Gradison, the Republican defeated last week in a congressional race that drew national attention, says he's confident voters were only issuing "a message" to President Nixon and will switch back for a general election this fall.

Gradison lost his bid in a longtime Republican stronghold to Democrat Thomas A. Luken by a 5,000-vote margin.

Gradison, in Washington to meet with Republican National Committee strategists, told The Cincinnati Enquirer Wednesday that he will recapture the votes which cost him the special election for former U.S. Rep. William Keating's seat.

He called the defeat a "referendum on the presidency."

"People who voted for Luken on March 5 are telling me they did it to send a message to the President, and that now that they have sent it, they will vote for me in November," he added.

Missing Police Cruiser Found

PRINCETON, W.Va. (AP)—A five-state search for a police cruiser carrying prisoners from Virginia to Ohio ended Wednesday night with the revelation that the driver apparently "took a wrong turn" somewhere in central West Virginia.

Mike Kosinar, a toll collector at the southern end of the West Virginia Turnpike here, said he recognized the car when it stopped at the gate from the police radio description. It was still headed in the wrong direction from its Ohio destination.

After a short explanation of the circumstances, the driver turned around and headed north again, Kosinar said. Princeton, near the Virginia border, is the southernmost point on the turnpike.

The Marlborough Township cruiser with two officers was transporting five prisoners from Roanoke, Va., to Alliance, Ohio. The car had been missing since early morning.

Kosinar said the cruiser pulled up to the gate and he was handed a ticket marked Charleston, some 88 miles to the north.

Kosinar said the driver apparently had mistakenly gone south on Interstate 77 near Charleston instead of going north. He then got on the West Virginia Turnpike and went back toward Virginia.

The entire episode meant an extra 180 miles of travel. There was also a report that the officers had car trouble, which may have accounted for the other lost time.

The toll collector said he told the driver it was a "tough break." The driver, he said, agreed.

Police agencies in Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, Ohio and the District of Columbia were on the alert for the car. Lexington Township Police Chief Paul B. Kelley said an air search was conducted over Pennsylvania and Washington, D. C.

The two officers in the car were Chief Russ Gatrell, 42, of Marlborough Township, and Sgt. Charles Smith, 34, of Lexington Township.

"They're all right and they still have their prisoners," Kelly said late Wednesday night.

Locking Gas Caps Boom

CONNERSVILLE, Ind. (AP)—One of the major manufacturers of locking gas caps says business is booming.

The Stant Manufacturing Co., reports sales are up 600 per cent over a year ago and the firm is running months behind filling orders.

The president of the firm says it is not so much a case of the high price of gasoline.

"After standing in line for several hours...you don't want to lose it," said Claire C. Widdows, Stant president. Stant is currently producing about 400,000 locking caps a month and plans to double that within four to six weeks, Widdows said.

He said business picked up when "the President got on the tube and scared everybody to death on the energy crisis."

The policemen left Roanoke Tuesday night following extradition of the prisoners. Kelly said four of the men were charged in a burglary in Marlborough Township and were wanted for questioning in a series of burglaries in the Alliance area. The fifth passenger was a juvenile.

Police would not give names or descriptions of the prisoners.

Welfare Assistance Available By State

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP)—State Welfare Director Charles Bates said Wednesday emergency assistance will be provided Ohioans who are temporarily left out of the federal Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program.

Bates said local welfare agencies will provide assistance for applicants for the new program until their first SSI checks arrive. He said he anticipates a problem because the SSI program has not been processing applications "in a timely and responsive fashion."

Crop Projections Planned By USDA

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department plans to issue on Friday new projections showing how 1974 crops of wheat, corn and other commodities are shaping up.

Officials said the report, by the department's Outlook and Situation Board, will be based on planting surveys taken among farmers March 1. The planting figures, including prospective acreages for corn and spring-type wheat, will be announced at 3 p.m. EDT.

The Nixon administration is banking heavily on bumper crop production this year, particularly for grains, as a dampener on spiraling consumer food prices. Larger output also is needed to rebuild grain stockpiles depleted by a two-year record drain by exports to foreign countries.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and other Nixon officials have said repeatedly that larger crop production is a better alternative than rationing exports or building huge government-owned food reserves.

The largest unknown factor, however, is whether farmers will have enough fuel, fertilizer and other supplies needed to plant, cultivate and harvest record 1974 crops. Department officials insist there will be enough of those items to produce the harvests although they admit some shortages are likely.

Based on an earlier survey made

City Policemen Stage Slowdown In Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—City policemen are staging a work slowdown, apparently in reaction to what they consider harassment of officers. Officials said arrests this week have dropped 80 to 90 per cent.

The slowdown was not organized but was a deliberate action by individual officers because of the number of complaints of excessive force filed against policemen recently, according to Dewey Stokes, president of the Fraternal Order of Police.

It also followed city council agreement Monday to establish a board to investigate police brutality complaints with an eye to establishing a standing civilian review board.

Stokes said the complaints and council action are having a debilitating effect on police morale.

Singing Osmonds Lead Double Life

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — To some people, the lives of the Osmonds—teen idols, night club stars and recording artists—might seem paradoxical.

On the one hand, they are devout Mormons, pledged to abstain from alcohol, tobacco, coffee, gambling and premarital sex.

On the other hand, they live in a world of rock music criticized by some Mormon leaders and they earn much of their wealth performing before the gambling crowds of Las Vegas.

But the 11-member family, which says it begins each day with a family prayer and gives 10 per cent of its income to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, sees no contradictions in lifestyle.

"Jesus ate with the publicans and the sinner," Olive Osmond, the mother, said during an interview at the family's Provo home between work engagements.

"People are people whether they're there to see a show or gamble in the slot machines," said her husband, George. "We go in the back door and out the back door."

Whatever the religious considerations, the Osmonds have hit it big. Almost continually one or more of the seven singing Osmond children has a record high on the charts. They play to standingroom crowds.

In 1972, the Osmonds produced 11 records, each hitting at least the $1 million mark in sales. No other singer or group—not the Beatles, not Elvis Presley—had so many gold records in one year.

The seven performing Osmonds are Alan, 24; Wayne, 22; Merrill, 20; Jay, 19; Donny, 16; Marie, 14, and Jimmy, 10. Two older children in the family, Viri and Tom, are deaf and work on "Osbro"—a name given some family productions.

Alan, Wayne, Merrill and Jay were the original Osmond Brothers, but Donny later joined them. Jimmy solos and sometimes performs novelty acts with the group, while Marie is getting into the country and western field with her recent top-of-the-charts "Paper Roses."

Donny, who appears monthly on the covers of fan magazines aimed at teenage girls, was not allowed to date until his 16th birthday last December, the family says.

The covers of 16, Fave, Tiger Beat and Teen Life scream: "Donny Tells All!" "Donny's Secret Love Talk," "His Hidden Passions," and ask, "Are You His Future Wife?"

When he appears in public he sometimes is mobbed by girls who want to touch him, kiss him, get his autograph, or just stare.

What causes the hysteria over Donny?

Gloria Stavers, editor of 16 magazine, says, "A girl at the age of 11 or 12 needs a safe, distant love object for her budding and rather intense awakening to feelings of love for the opposite sex."

Donny has his own explanation.

"Around my age, they (girls) want to cry and scream and stuff like that," he says. "And songs that I record they can relate to very well. 'Puppy Love'—they're true songs; puppy love actually goes on."

He is not bothered by the fan magazines.

"It's fun to go through them once in awhile," he says. "They get off some stories that could become dangerous. But you have to admit they do help us and they helped us become more popular."

The progress of the family from obscurity in Utah to bright lights in Las Vegas can be measured step by step.

They started with barbershop harmonies at their church-sponsored family home evenings, then went from civic club dates to Disneyland, to the Andy Williams television show for nine seasons and finally to Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas. They recently signed a four-year contract with the Tropicana in Las Vegas.

"We always felt that our mission was to the outside world," said George Osmond, 56, a former insurance and real estate broker.

After singing, the brothers learned to dance, then play instruments.

"Traveling the fair circuit, we met a lot of experienced pros," said the father. "In between shows we would pick their brains... juggling, tumbling, circus acts, unicycle—all of this we could learn from these pros, and everything we learned, we used."

A tutor was hired to teach the traveling kids, and out of that came an Osmond company selling educational programs on cassette tapes. The most recent teacher, Mary Carlson, a former Brigham Young University cheerleader, is now Mrs. Merrill Osmond.

Despite the fortune they've made, acclaim for Osmond music is not universal. One writer described it as "simple, repetitive, with naive lyrics, easy to remember, and mercifully, easy to forget."

In fact, although the Osmonds have sold millions of albums and singles, many people outside the TOP 40 teen set have never heard of them.

The Osmonds attribute to their family closeness any success they have in maintaining a wholesome environment amid the glitter and temptations of the entertainment world.

When in Utah the Osmonds live in a 21-room converted office building with a professional studio. It is one of 13 buildings in Provo's Riviera apartment complex, which they share with 825 unmarried students at Mormon-operated Brigham Young University who have contracted not to smoke, drink or engage in premarital sex.

"It's rough to be in the business and not start to become part of it," says Alan. "If you're careful, you can be. And that's why working together as a family has helped us to maintain our values and our goals."

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Learn Power Of Praise

DEAR ABBY: After living with 'Mr. Your Job' for 20 years, I have had it.

I used to love to cook but it's no fun anymore, because no matter how hard I try my husband never says it was good. If I ask him if he enjoyed the meal, he says: "Yes, but why should I say anything? That's your job."

I made draperies and curtains for the whole house, and even slip-covered the furniture myself, and he never said one word. When I asked him if he thought the house looked nice, he said: "Sure but that's your job."

Funny how if he washes the car or mows the lawn and I don't rave about what a wonderful job he's done, he pouts for a week.

Please print this, Abby. Maybe "Mr. Your Job" will see it, and take the hint. "MRS. YOUR JOB"

DEAR "MRS. YOUR JOB": Too bad "Mr. Your Job" hasn't learned the power of praise. Most people need only to know they're appreciated to keep them whistling while they work.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please settle a family disagreement? We've decided to abide by your decision.

We have two children, ages 10 and 12. I require them to write thank-you notes for all the gifts they receive for Christmas, their birthdays, or any other occasion.

My husband says they are too young to be required to write such notes. What do you think?

OHIO MOM

DEAR MOM: A big fat vote for you!

As soon as children can print they should be taught to write thank-you notes for gifts. The habits they form when they are very young will carry over into their adult lives. This goes for boys as well as girls. For some strange

Railroad Plan

Could Cancel

New Ohio Plant

NEW YORK (AP)—An American Can Co. spokesman said Tuesday a federal proposal to reorganize the Northeast's bankrupt railroads could force the firm to cancel plans to build an $18.4 million plant in Whitehouse, Ohio.

George Armstrong said the company might have to scuttle the Toledo area facility plans because of a provision in the federal proposal to abandon a quarter of the railroad's trackage.

Armstrong was among witnesses during the second day of hearings on the proposal, which would merge the Penn Central and six other railroads.

A spokesman for Nestles, Inc., testified that the cutting of rail service to its facility at Sunbury, Ohio, would seriously interfere with operations.

Pay Cutoff Plan Falters In Ohio Assembly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An attempt to exclude an estimated 35,000 non-teaching school employees from unemployment pay during summer months appears to be faltering in the legislature.

The Senate's majority Republicans picked up four Democratic votes Wednesday and sent the bill to the House 21-9, but lost by a single vote an emergency clause that would have headed off initial payments this summer. It takes 22, or two-thirds, for an emergency clause in the Senate. Non-emergency bills require 90 days to become law.

Labor's big guns, mainly the Ohio AFL-CIO, say they have the support among the 58-41 Democratic House majority to stop the bill. It's demise would enable teachers aides, janitors, cooks, and others to draw benefits averaging $29 a week this summer for the first time.

Non-teaching employees at the universities were voted eligible in 1971, and the law was expanded by the legislature in 1973 to include primary and secondary school employees.

The bill, by Sen. Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, also would take away newly-voted coverage for employees of county boards of mental retardation which run school programs that coincide with other public schools.

Maloney offered the bill, he said, because the legislature failed last year to appropriate funds to cover the costs which he said may run as high as $15 million a year. He also questioned the eligibility of workers who take on jobs of less than 12 months a year knowing "full well" their employment is not permanent.

Sen. Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, led the floor fight against the bill on grounds that taking away the benefits voted last year would be "discriminatory, and going back on our word." It would be discrimination, he said, since the legislature "saw fit to give the benefits to higher education employees two years ago."

Democrats who supported both the emergency clause and the bill were Sens. Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, Gene Slagle, D-26 Galion; David L. Headley, D-28 Barberton, and Robert T. Secrest, D-20 Cambridge. Secrest said he did so because the legislature should not have mandated coverage without providing the funds.

In other action, the Senate added its approval 30-0 to a House bill that permits an exchange of land in Scioto County between the Ohio Power Co. and the Lucasville Correctional Institution.

Among a half dozen new bills introduced in the Senate were two that permit county commissioners to buy liability insurance for sheriffs and deputies, and require that roll bars and re-enforced roofs be installed on certain vehicles used by law enforcement agencies.

Classes are scheduled to begin on March 25, and prospective students should register prior to this date. Students may register at the Office of Admissions and Registration in Bennett Hall from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Certificates in First Aid were earned by 165 persons during the past year in 18 classes taught by 10 volunteer instructors of Pickaway County Red Cross.

After lengthy debate, the House voted mostly along party lines, 58-32, and sent to the Senate a bill that would allow day care subsidies for babysitting to persons other than those in day care centers.

Republican opponents pointed out that language in the measure, allowing payments to anyone other than parents, would make it possible for grandmothers or grandfathers to receive them at the rate of $3 a day for each of up to four children.

Among those speaking against the measure was Rep. Thomas N. Kindness, R-58 Hamilton, who said "it would be taking public money to pay Grandma to take care of the grandchildren. I'm not sure it's the state's burden."

The chief sponsor, Rep. C. J. McLin Jr., D-36 Dayton, said the measure would allow 500 to 700 women who do not have access to day care facilities "to get out of the welfare cycle and find a job." His figures came from a Welfare Department estimate, he said.

The House, in other action, passed and sent to Gov. John J. Gilligan for signing into law a bill aimed at bringing Ohio's traffic control signals into line with federal law.

It would permit, among other things, the use of a yellow arrow indicator on traffic lights, a signal not currently recognized in Ohio.

The House refused to concur, by a 44-44 vote, in Senate amendments to a bill allowing urban townships to establish civil service commissions for police and firemen. The measure apparently is headed for a joint conference committee.

The Senate amended the House bill, lowering from 25,000 to 10,000 population the description of an urban township. This resulted in the deadlock.

The House also passed and sent to the Senate a bill that would allow the State Department of Education to accept proposals for pilot projects on urban education from local school boards.

Marathon Strike Talks Held In San Francisco Walkout

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Marathon talks continued today in an effort to end an eight-day strike of city employees that has paralyzed public transit.

There were reports that the strikers might try to halt Southern Pacific commuter trains from San Francisco peninsula from entering the city and to close the port to sea traffic.

A spokesman for the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union said its members would not cross picket lines on city piers.

"We're going all night through, all the way through," Mayor Joseph L. Alioto said as negotiators for the city and the striking Service Employees International Union started the night bargaining session.

Alioto said the pay hike gap in bargaining had been narrowed to $85 a month demanded by the SEIU and $65 offered by the city's Board of Supervisors. The union wants $16 million a year in pay raises and a dental health plan. The striking workers earn an average of $850 a month in jobs ranging from $581 to $1,500.

There were estimates that the strike is causing an economic loss of $20 million a day.

In another labor dispute, San

Francisco's 130 schools have been operating on a half-day schedule because of a strike of 2,000 members of the San Francisco Federation of Teachers.

The teachers walked out last Friday to back demands for a 15 per cent pay increase during the 1974-1975 academic year.

Some school workers also are members of the striking city workers union, and school bus drivers are honoring its picket lines.

The some 10,000 clerks, janitors, hospital workers, social workers and other civil service staff represented by the SEIU rejected on Wednesday the city's latest pay package. Terms were not disclosed.

Cincy School Problems Continue

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Opposition to a school board plan calling for mandatory faculty transfers on a racial basis continues to mount with two teachers groups considering a merger and legal action.

The Cincinnati Teachers Association (CTA) today was to discuss possible merger with its former rival, the Cincinnati Federation of Teachers (CFT).

CTA, the official bargaining agent with the board of education, has 2,400 members and CFT, 552.

CFT has issued an ultimatum to the school to change its teacher transfer plan or face mass sick-ins.

The two groups received support from a coalition of teachers and black civil rights groups Wednesday.

The Rev. Otis Moss, chairman of the People United to Save Humanity (PUSH), urged the teachers to consider filing a suit against the plan.

Rev. Moss attacked the new, conservative board of education for failing to implement a Dec. 10, 1973, integration policy approved by the outgoing liberal board.

The CFT reported Wednesday it is going ahead with plans to file suit against the teacher transfer plan Friday.

Rev. Moss said PUSH has a contingency plan, but declined to disclose it. The group is demanding total integration of faculty and students.

Six schools hit by faculty absenteeism Tuesday returned to normal Wednesday after School Superintendent Donald Waldrup issued a memo ordering doctor's proof of sickness or no pay.

That order was attacked by CTA President Harriet Russell. She said it violates terms of the teachers contracts.

Firm To Plan Ohio Lottery

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A New Jersey consulting firm has been contracted to plan the Ohio lottery, a Lottery Commission spokesman said Wednesday.

Mathematica of Princeton, N.J., was one of the first consultants to express interest in setting up the lottery, the spokesman said.

Lottery Commission Chairman David Leahy said the contract is for about $250,000, and the work should take four or five months.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A high pressure ridge will move eastward across Ohio today bringing sunny weather conditions but with a chance of showers Thursday night.

Under clear skies Wednesday night, temperatures were in the upper teens and low 20s. The coldest spots late Wednesday were in Toledo, Mansfield and Youngstown with 17 degrees. Readings this afternoon are expected to range from the mid 30s near Lake Erie to the mid 40s in southern Ohio.

Winds today will be lighter than Wednesday, so that the chill factor will not be so strong. Following the high pressure ridge, a little warmer weather is forecast for Friday ahead of a low pressure developing early Thursday near the Dakotas. It is that low moving eastward that could bring some showers to the state Thursday night.

Temperatures tonight are expected to drop to the low 30s or 20s, and rise into the 40s or low 50s Friday afternoon under mostly cloudy skies.

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

Yesterday's books of kings and queens have given way to tales of magic and hauntings. New paperbacks for children highlight the trend. Funny and slightly shivery, these stories stretch the imagination. The shadows of everyone who has visited Emily's garden have a life of their own in "The Shades" by Betty Brock. When the laughing, carefree shadow people meet a live boy who has discovered their secret world, they share many delightful adventures.

Irrepressible Alison in "The Active Enzyme Lemon-Freshened Junior High School Witch" is led to believe she's a witch. Light-hearted attempts at creating potions, writing incantations and casting spells arm her against warring witches. Humorous, rather than sinister, the author gives Alison a few months to take it seriously and then she's off on another kick.

From flying witches to fly balls, we have "The Horse That Played Center Field" by Hal Higdon. When a losing

L-O-F To Shut Down Work At 2 Plants

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Libbey-Owens-Ford Co. announced Wednesday it will shut down glass laminating and tempering operations and lay off 1,130 workers at its East Toledo and Rossford plants the weeks of March 25 and April 15.

Company spokesmen said the layoffs are a result of reduced automotive glass demand resulting from the slowdown in auto production.

Coach has tried everything he jokingly gambles on a horse whose catching ability can't be worse than his human counterparts. The faithful formula of animal outdoing man is used here to provide laughter for boys or girls.

An ALA Notable book that's fun is "Freaky Friday" by Mary Rodgers. Annabel wakes up one morning to find herself in her mother's body. The ludicrous situations that develop as she meets her mother's friends and her own boyfriends are wildly entertaining.

Strange footprints, secret compartments and ghosts are combined in Peggy Parish's "Haunted House." Always popular with beginning mystery fans, the author has created a plot to mystify, but not to frighten.

And a paperback has arrived for all the fans of Laura Ingalls Wilders' series of the little house. This is her final chapter on prairie life in the 1880's.

The tale of a boy who runs away from home to seek his fortune in the Gold Rush days, "By the Great Horned Spoon" by Sid Fleischman is in paperback. A jolly story for adventure loving boys, it is an old fashioned yarn and has plenty of action.

Sensitive young teens may like to try "Hey, Dummy" by Kin Platt. All the conflicts between people who fear "dummies" and those who understand mental retardation are personalized. Twelve year old Neil is unafraid to take action as he becomes aware of the tragedy.

Many copies of teen oriented paperbacks are now available in the library, so give the paperbacks another look.

Divorce Ends Film Marriage

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The marriage of actor Ryan O'Neal and actress Leigh Taylor-Young, whose romance flowered when they were costars on television's "Peyton Place," has ended in divorce.

Miss Taylor-Young, 29, had sought the divorce granted Wednesday on grounds of irreconcilable differences with O'Neal, 32, star of "Love Story" and several other motion pictures.

Superior Court Judge Pearce Young temporarily granted a motion by Miss Taylor-Young's attorney that court files, including terms of the property settlement, be sealed. Young asked for documents supporting the request.

NCAA Heavyweights Clash

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
The heavyweights come out fighting tonight in Round Two of the NCAA basketball playoffs.
Sixteen of the nation's best college teams, including that old smoothie UCLA, will battle toe-to-toe in arenas across the country.
UCLA, nine-time winner of the national championship, is favored to score a knockout over Dayton's muscled independents in one of the Far West regional games.
In the other one at Tucson, Ariz., it's Western Athletic Conference winner New Mexico State vs. San Francisco, king of the West Coast Athletic Conference.
Kansas, the Big Eight champion,

meets independent toughie Creighton, while Missouri Valley Conference champ Louisville takes on Oral Roberts, another nonleague team with punch, in the Midwest in Tulsa, Okla. Okla.
In the Midwest at Tuscaloosa, Ala., independent Notre Dame faces Michigan, the Big Ten winner, and independent Marquette challenges Vanderbilt, winner of the Southeastern Conference.
The East regionals at Raleigh, N. C., matches independent Pitt against Southern Conference champion Furman and independent Providence with North Carolina State, the Atlantic Coast Conference champion.
While many of the other teams played first-round games last

Saturday, UCLA and North Carolina State were busy settling their own conference races. The Pac-8 and ACC traditionally draw first-round byes in the playoffs.
Michigan and Indiana tied for the Big Ten title at the end of the regular season Saturday and the Wolverines won an NCAA berth by beating the Hoosiers in a playoff game Monday night.
Dayton will be an interesting test for UCLA, a team that obviously is not the superteam of past years. The third-ranked Bruins have been beaten three times this season, the first time that's happened in eight years.
The Flyers beat second-ranked Notre Dame by 15 points earlier this season. The Fighting Irish stopped

UCLA's fabulous 88-game winning streak last January.
"We will have the same respect for Dayton that we had for Southern Cal," said UCLA Coach John Wooden, referring to the Bruins' 82-52 conference-clincher over the Trojans.
Dayton Coach Don Donohue goes into this sudden-death game with plans for the powerful Bruins.
"We'd like to have a say in the tempo of the game," said Donohue. "We don't want to go in with one extreme, like to hold the ball, but by the same token, we don't want to go like it's the 100 meters in the Olympics, either."
The second game of the Far West regional features a battle of teams with muscle and inside power.
"We hope we don't have to stand toe-to-toe with them," said New Mexico Coach Norm Ellenberger. "If it turns into a boxing match, we'll have to do some work on the weights right away."
San Francisco's Bob Gaillard: "We feel we play aggressive defense. But we're not as aggressive as New Mexico."

All-Americans Named

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Walton and David Thompson, the premier players on two of America's premier teams, were named today to the Associated Press All-America basketball team for 1974.
Walton, UCLA's golden center, and the graceful Thompson from North Carolina State scored big in the voting by sports writers and broadcasters from around the country.
Joining Walton and Thompson on the AP's glamour team are UCLA's Keith Wilkes, John Shumate of Notre Dame and Providence's Marvin Barnes.

Walton, the most publicized collegian since the days of Lew Alcindor, made the star-studded team for the third straight year. Thompson, often termed the best forward in the country and a sure-fire professional star, was voted on the first team for the second straight season, his junior year.
Wilkes, one of the smartest and smoothest forwards in the country, was on The AP's Second Team last season. Barnes, the nation's leading rebounder with almost 19 a game this year, was an Honorable Mention last year. This is a first time for Shumate, the big wheel in Notre Dame's high-powered offense.

Walton and Thompson, darlings of the professional scouts, were also darlings of the voters. With Walton polling the most votes, the two front-court players scored by a wide margin over Shumate, the third best vote-getter. Wilkes outscored Barnes by an eyelash.
Walton, sometimes as mystifying as he is celebrated, was a tower of strength for the powerful Bruins this year.
Despite a gimpy knee, UCLA's most famous cripple helped the Bruins run their spectacular winning streak to 88 games halfway through the season. Even when losing to Notre Dame in the streakbreaker, he played with injury — and played well.
Thompson, the only non-senior on the first team, was played to a standstill by Wilkes earlier in the season when UCLA beat North Carolina State in their "game of the year." But the flashy forward came back from that performance with All-America class.
The high-leaping Thompson, easily the best player in the Atlantic Coast Conference, brought the "Pack back from that disastrous showing against UCLA to the top of the college basketball world.

CCA Tournament Gets Under Way

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Both cheered and chastised, the first Collegiate Commissioners Association basketball tourney gets under way tonight at the cavernous, 19,000-seat Arena with two games.
Whereas the coach of 10th-ranked Indiana called the post-season test "A waste of time," the director of Southern Cal's 15th-ranked forces is an unabashed fan.
"The tournament is for runners-up," Indiana's 34-year-old Bobby Knight said after his Hoosiers fell to 12th-ranked Michigan in the Big Ten conference playoffs this week.

"We're not runners-up," the fiery Knight insisted. "We're co-champions of the Big Ten and deserving of something better."
Knight's tirade against his squad's appearance in the eight-team CCA could generate interest, however, within a field liberally sprinkled with strong quintets.
USC's Bob Boyd, whose Trojans were crushed last week by UCLA, labels the test "the start of a new season."
"We look forward to the tournament," says Boyd, whose team, 22-4, will take on Southern Methodist, 15-11, a title darkhorse, in the second game of tonight's first round.
In the opening contest, fast moving Arizona State, 18-8, is rated "as good as we have been all year" by Coach Ned Wulk ahead of its game with underdog Toledo, 18-8.
"The difference in playing in the NCAA and playing in St. Louis is just a bounce of the ball," maintains Coach Joe Stowell, whose Bradley Braves, 19-7, will face Kansas State, 19-7, Friday night.
And the other Friday night game, of course, pits Indiana, 20-5, against Tennessee, which feels superior to its 17-8 record in the Southeast Conference.
"We felt we had one of our best ball clubs this year and came in third," commented Coach Ray Mears, whose Vols are led by 6-foot-5 frosh Ernie Grunfeld.

Lakers Top Philadelphia

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer
Little Gail Goodrich sat slumped in the Los Angeles locker room after carrying the weight of the Laker offense for the second night in a row.
At 6-foot-1 and 175 pounds, Goodrich has not only been the highest scoring Laker, he's also the most durable.
"Gail Goodrich is just a great offensive player," said Los Angeles Coach Bill Sharman after the Lakers beat the Philadelphia 76ers 121-100 in the National Basketball Association Wednesday night. "And he's the only starter who has been in every game this year."

Goodrich scored 34 points Tuesday night to rally the Lakers to a victory over the Knicks, then popped in 38 points 24 hours later to guide Los Angeles to its 11th victory in its last 13 games.
Elsewhere in the NBA, the Boston Celtics downed the Phoenix Suns 104-97 and the Houston Rockets dumped the Capital Bullets 117-93.
ABA scores: Indiana 100, Kentucky 96; San Antonio 111, Denver 108, overtime; New York 97, Utah 76, San Diego 119, Virginia 103.
Clemson freshman Wayne Rollins blocked 52 shots in his first 10 games with the varsity basketball team this season.
The Detroit Tigers will play exhibition games against eight National League teams this spring.

Reds Defeat White Sox In 3-1 Game

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — It wasn't a typical Cincinnati victory. The Reds, noted for their booming bats, managed only two hits, both by a couple guys who needed crutches to walk not too long ago.
But the Reds won their fourth game in five exhibition baseball outings Wednesday 3-1 over the Chicago White Sox.
Despite being outthit 10-2, Cincinnati edged the White Sox on a solo home run by shortstop Dave Concepcion, a sacrifice fly by newcomer Merv Rettenmund and a bunt by pitcher Mike McQueen.
Concepcion is recovering from a broken ankle and McQueen, picked up in the winter draft, spent two months in a hospital with injuries received in an auto accident.
Jack Billingham, a 19-game winner last year, became the first Reds' pitcher to go five innings this spring. He allowed five hits and a run to pick up the victory.
John Lamb was the loser, victimized by hitting Dan Driessen with a pitch and advancing the Cincinnati third baseman to second on an errant pickoff throw. An infielder moved Driessen to third and Rettenmund made it 2-1 with a long fly out.
The Reds host the Minnesota Twins today.

Top-Ranked Prep Teams Ousted

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Two top-ranked Class AAA teams were knocked out of contention in high school regional basketball tournament action Wednesday night.
Second-ranked and previously unbeaten Kettering Alter fell to defending champion Cincinnati Elder 58-48, and third-ranked Springfield North was ousted by seven-time titlist Middletown 79-61.
Elder and Middletown, both with 20-3 records, advanced to the regional championship game in Dayton Saturday.
In other tournament action Wednesday night, Boardman downed Cleveland East Tech 93-82 in the Canton Class AAA regional and Mount Blanchard Riverdale edged Lincolnview in a Class A semifinal at Bowling Green.
Cincinnati Elder, ranked 16th in the final Associated Press poll, snapped a 14-14 tie by scoring eight straight points early in the second quarter and stayed ahead the rest of the way.
Kettering Alter, playing without its leading scorer, Joe Siggins, who has a sprained ankle, never got closer than eight points again.
Bill Earley paced Elder with 21 points. Kettering, bowing out with a 22-1 mark, got 18 points from Bob Schaeffer, who filled in for Siggins.

Middletown, ninth in the AP ratings, went on eight-point scoring spree three times in the third period to break open a previously close game.
Damon Graham of Middletown and Randy Ayers of Springfield North shared scoring honors with 20 points apiece.
It was Springfield North's first loss in 24 games.
Although the Middies are bidding for their eighth state championship, they haven't won the title since 1957.
Boardman came off a 40-39 halftime deficit to outscore East Tech 29-11 in the third period and blow the game open. Senior guard Don Filip led the victors with 28 points.
East Tech, three-time state titlist, finished with a 15-7 record.
Boardman (22-1) now goes to the regional championship game against the winner of tonight's Canton McKinley-Akron Kenmore game.
At Bowling Green, Riverdale got hot in the second period, outscoring Lincolnview 25-12 to overcome a five-point deficit, and never trailed again.
The triumph was Riverdale's 20th in 23 starts and moved it into the regional Class A finale Saturday against the winner of tonight's game between Continental and Napoleon Edon.

Former LE Coach Takes Mt. Vernon To Regionals

Mt. Vernon High School, coached by former Logan Elm High School cage mentor Keith Merrin, plays Celina in the state class AAA regional tournament at Ohio State Fairgrounds Coliseum 9 p.m. Friday.
It is the first time in over 50 years Mt. Vernon has played in the regionals. The Yellow Jackets played in the state tournament some 52 years ago when it was an invitational event.
Merrin is no stranger to regional tournament play, having twice taken Logan Elm squads to regional class A action at Athens.

A graduate of Mt. Vernon High School and Capital University, Merrin returned to his alma mater as head basketball coach after a successful career beginning at Logan Elm and brief stay in Delaware Hayes High School as head coach of the Pacers cage team.
Mt. Vernon this year was co-champion of the Ohio Capital Conference.

Cincy Reds After Big Prize--Again

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Heralded as one of baseball's best teams, but hounded by four years of frustration, the Cincinnati Reds try, try again in 1974.

"Win it all" was the trumpeting call from combative field leader Pete Rose, the National League's Most Valuable Player last season.

The Reds' 99 victories led the majors in 1973 but The Big Red Machine ran into another post-season roadblock, losing to the New York Mets in the playoffs.

Determined to shed the disappointments of two World Series setbacks, the collapse of 1971 and last year's abbreviated bid, President Bob Howsam staged a minor winter overhaul.

He traded off disgruntled outfielder Bobby Tolan for righthander Clay Kirby, the San Diego Padres' winningest pitcher, and peddled starter Ross Grimsley to the Baltimore Orioles for seasoned veteran outfielder Merv Rettenmund.

The result, Howsam hopes, was reinforcement against the vulnerability of past shortseries failures.

And most agree the Reds loom again as the Western Division power.

But there are question marks.

Is catcher Johnny Bench ready to bounce back after an off-year? Can Clay Carroll regain his relief pitching magic? Is Gary Nolan's career finished at age 25?

Manager George "Sparky" Anderson echoes renewed optimism. "I'm not afraid to say it. We should win everything this year."

Emerging as chief candidates to lead a breakthrough assault in 1974 are pitchers Jack Billingham and Don Gullett, who combined for 37 victories last year.

Billingham, 19-10, became a stopper after a so-so 44-44 career record and Gullett came on with a flurry, winning nine straight down the stretch.

The experience of Rose, Bench, slick-fielding second baseman Joe Morgan and slugging first baseman Tony Perez lends maturity. The sometimes-sputtering pitching staff seems stabilized with the acquisition of ex-Padres' Fred Norman and Kirby. Anderson's chief concern lies with youngsters Dan Driessen and Ken Griffey, who responded to pennant pressures with amazing poise. They will need to deliver the depth.

Nolan's arm continues to plague him with pain. The outlook is dim and more surgery is likely. But his loss for a second straight season could be offset by Roger Nelson's healed arm.

Shortstop Dave Concepcion, who carried the Reds during a first-half slump, stroked a runscore single in his spring debut. That could signal he is ready to take up where he left off before breaking an ankle at mid-season.

Barring an injury, Rose appears headed for a 10th consecutive .300 season. The 32-year-old Reds' captain anchors left field and largely accounts for the winning spirit with his stirring hustle.

Bench's output declined, but considering he drove in 100 runs again after major surgery there's reason to believe he's ready for another big year. He had 25 homers in 1973.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The Cleveland Indians led the American League in home runs last season, but their initiative stopped right there.

The Tribe was the East Division's cellar-dweller when the final bell rang and finished the season with a baseball club that made one wonder how it even did that well.

In the later part of the season Manager Ken Aspromonte fired outfielder George Hendrick because he didn't charge a ground ball, there was an altercation between several coaches and a member of the press and a winning streak was three games.

Except for two new pitchers, the squad is the same as last year and it is doubtful that the youngsters on the team will improve enough to bring the club out of the basement.

The Indians are placing a lot of their hopes in an entirely new coaching staff and Aspromonte began the spring training season issuing severe warnings to everyone that they better be in shape and toe the line.

The new coaches are Tony Pacheco and Clay Bryant, who are up from minor league posts, and Larry Doby, a former Indian star. Doby comes to the Tribe from a coaching job with the Montreal Expos.

Doby and Pacheco will handle the general coaching duties and Bryant will work with the pitching staff.

The Indians pitching staff has one strong pitcher and that's 1972 Cy Young Award winner Gaylord Perry. However, his 1973 performance (19-19), although the winningest on the club, was below his previous year's 24-16.

Behind Perry there are Dick Tidrow (14-16), Milt Wilcox (8-10), Tom Timmerman (9-8), Dick Bosman (2-5) and Brent Strom (2-10). Other returning pitchers include Mike Kekich, Tom Hilgendorf, Ray Lamb and Ken Sanders.

Cecil Upshaw, picked up in a trade with the Houston Astros, will be used to boost the Indians' bullpen, which except for Sanders, needs help.

The Pittsburgh Pirates sent Bob Johnson to the Indians and the Tribe will be looking at him as a starter and a reliever.

The Indians' infield will remain the same, although Aspromonte is giving John Lowenstein, an outfielder-infielder, a closer look at second base.

Third baseman Buddy Bell, who has already been saddled with the unofficial title of team captain, is one of the Indians' brightest spots. Bell played in the All-Star game last year and turned in a .268 batting average, scoring 86 runs and driving in 59.

Covering the left side of the infield with Bell is shortstop Frank Duffy. Second baseman Jack Brohamer batted .220 last year and that's the reason for Aspromonte's interest in Lowenstein.

In 305 trips to the plate, Lowenstein batted .292, drove in 76 runs and scored

78. First baseman Chris Chambliss has no competition. Chambliss batted .273 last season.

The outfield will again be covered by Oscar Gamble, Hendrick, Rusty Torres, Charlie Spikes and Walt Williams, with Ron Lolic filling in now and then.

Michigan State's 10-7 football victory over Purdue in 1973 made it four in a row for the Spartans over the Boilermakers.

Nixon Committee To Aid Defendants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trustees of President Nixon's leftover campaign funds have decided to pay legal fees and expenses for former officials acquitted of criminal charges and possibly for those found guilty of misdemeanors.

One of the largest beneficiaries of the decision could be one of the trustees — former Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans, who is on trial in New York on federal charges of criminal conspiracy, perjury and obstruction of justice.

Stans, who reportedly has spent more than $100,000 out of his own pocket for legal fees, participated in the trustees' decision, according to one of the other trustees.

Although the decision expands a previous policy of the Nixon campaign organization, both of Stans' co-trustees said in interviews they were unaware it was a change.

Stans was finance director of the Nixon campaign. He is on trial along

Film 'Con' Tried Out By Trio

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—A 9-year-old boy and two teen-agers were convicted Wednesday after being caught at a confidence game popularized by the movie "Paper Moon."

The three Middletown juveniles were fined $25 and court costs on charges of defrauding two merchants and attempting to trick a supermarket checkout clerk.

According to police, a 17-year-old girl would enter a store and make a purchase with a $20 bill. The 9-year-old boy soon followed, using a $5 bill to buy several items. Then he would complain to the clerk that he paid with a $20 and demand change.

When the clerk disagreed, the boy would convincingly explain the $20 was a gift from his uncle and had his name and "Happy Birthday" written on it.

A check of the bill would show what the youngster insisted. Change would be given "with an apology," police said.

A 16-year-old boy was also involved, according to police.

The trio said the idea came from the book "Addie Pray," which was made into the movie "Paper Moon."

Police said the three were ordered to make restitution and were placed on probation.

Sardine Sandwich Getting Squeezed

NEW YORK (AP) — The sardine sandwich may become a thing of the past, says Audubon magazine, if overfishing persists.

Britain's east coast sardine fishery is dead already and schools of fish off Maine, Canada and California are dwindling. There are only 17 sardine canneries in Maine now compared to 51 in 1950.

One remedy, says the magazine, would be to close spawning areas, since it is at spawning time that the fish congregate in largest numbers, but no government seems much interested.

The term sardine is applied to both pilchards and sea herrings.

Nesting Birds Big Problem On North Side Of Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— More than 100,000 birds nesting in a North Side area of Columbus may pose a serious health hazard to residents, officials said Wednesday.

Ron Ogden, assistant state superintendent for the U.S. Wildlife Service, said the birds are migrating blackbirds, purple grackles, cowbirds, starlings and red-winged blackbirds. They have been roosting in a seven acre wooded area surrounded by homes for several weeks, he said.

Ogden said the health hazard lies in the bird droppings. Spores from the droppings, when inhaled, cause fungus diseases that attack the lungs, he said.

Although there is little immediate danger, Ogden explained, if dry weather continues the situation could become dangerous.

And unless something is done to chase them away, the birds will remain in the area until mid-April, he said.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has been denied permits to chase the birds away, Ogden said.

The Columbus police license bureau, which issues the permits, said they were denied because it would only chase the birds out of this area and into another. The bureau said so far it has received only telephone requests for the permits.

The permits would allow the agency to disturb the peace by broadcasting a loud simulated blackbird distress call. The service also would be allowed to shoot firecrackers in the air to frighten the birds, Ogden said.

Ogden said he was planning to meet with city and state health officials to get the fowled-up area declared a health hazard.

If a health hazard is declared, the service would probably get permission quickly to clear out the birds, Ogden said.

In the same announcement, Joe Streitenberger was hired as hog salesman for the market and Phyllis Walters was named office manager.

Howard Rainier, director of operations for PLA will remain at the market for several weeks during the transitional period, in a supervisory position, to help accomplish the management changeover.

Harold Sherman, who is an OSU graduate in Animal Science, can boast of broad experience in the livestock business from the production end of the live animal right on through the retail sale of the finished product.

His extensive experience includes many years with David Davies in managerial and supervisory positions

Harold and his wife and two teenagers presently live in Alexandria but he hopes to move into the immediate area as soon as he can find suitable housing.

Joe Streitenberger, who has worked at the Bowling Stock Yards since last May, brings much experience to his hogman position including his years as manager of a 40-sow feeder pig operation. Joe and his wife live in Kinnikinnick.

Phyllis Walters, like most of the former personnel, will continue working at the Producers stockyard. Phyllis, who has been at the market for 18 years, now takes on the additional responsibility of Office Manager.

The market now under Producers management will continue to have a daily hog market and a Wednesday auction plus a complete line of Producers' services.

Campaign Finance Bill Clears Panel

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An apparently bi-partisan, but watered down campaign financing bill cleared an Ohio House committee shortly before midnight Wednesday after nearly six months of political bickering.

The vote was 15-2.

Agreement by the House State Government Committee on the Senate-approved measure culminated efforts that began last October at an abortive special session on campaign financing.

A spokesman for Gov. John J. Gilligan's office indicated both parties now are ready to give the legislation final approval.

"I don't think it will have to go to a conference committee," said William Chavanne, Gilligan's deputy assistant for legislative affairs.

Although the bill does make substantial changes in present law, it leaves untouched the major problem of putting limits on political contributions by labor groups and big money interests.

Soviets Earn Big Windfall In Gold Sales

LONDON (AP) — The Russians earned more than $800 million selling gold abroad in 1973 and most of the money wound up in the United States, says a leading London gold dealer.

Samuel Montagu and Co. said in their annual bullion review today that the Soviet government sold about 280 tons of gold last year, the highest volume they have marketed since 1965.

A spokesman at Montagu said most of this gold was sold during the first nine months of the year to help pay for American wheat.

He added that the Russians got an average price of $90 an ounce, making their sale of 280 tons worth $824 million.

Montagu said Moscow actually sold more gold abroad in 1965, a total of 311 tons. But then the price was only $35 an ounce, and the Russians realized $348 million for the year, less than half of what they got in last year's record take.

The figures are estimates, but Montagu is believed to know as much about Soviet gold dealings as anyone outside the Kremlin. The firm, one of London's biggest bullion dealers, has handled Russian gold sales in the West for many years.

Spokesmen for each major party said they could not yield to the other's demands on that question without putting themselves out of business, but they vowed to tackle that problem later.

Labor unions traditionally support Democrats, while over the years Republicans have relied heavily on contributions through their officers.

If approved by the House, the measure must go back to the Senate for consideration of numerous House changes. However, Senate sponsors have been working behind the scenes with the House panel and are expected to urge approval.

The bill sets limits on the amounts that may be spent in seeking public offices ranging from the governor's chair down to local school board offices. In the case of the governor, the maximum for each election would be $1.5 million. School board members could spend 10 cents per pupil (average daily attendance), and the lowest minimum would be about $500.

Another key provision is that each candidate would have to let a single committee receive and authorize expenditures, eliminating an existing practice of candidates being able to "hide" financial facts in a combination of state and local committees.

The bill also requires that financial statements be made public before an election, as well as 45 days after as required in present law. The bill sets up an Ohio Elections Commission to hear complaints and aid in enforcement of campaign finance laws.

Trucking Firm Named In Suit

ST. LOUIS (AP)—An Ohio based trucking firm was sued for $10 million Wednesday in U.S. District Court here by six of its drivers who charged violation of antitrust laws.

The class-action suit, filed on behalf of the 250 drivers from across the nation who work for Midwest Haulers, Inc., charged the company was illegally forcing the drivers into contracts to purchase their trucks, equipment and service from Midwest or its designated companies.

The six truckers, all from the St. Louis area, also alleged that Midwest Haulers has been improperly forcing its drivers to pay their own Social Security taxes and workmen's compensation insurance.

CHEVROLET'S LONG-HELD REPUTATION FOR VALUE AND ECONOMY MEANS ALL THE MORE TODAY.

20 small cars from Chevrolet, 17 of them priced under $3,000.

5 VEGAS, FROM $2380*

The lowest priced 4-cylinder car made in America.

That would be the Vega Notchback Coupe. And Vega has more than just its low price going for it. Results of recent Chevrolet fuel economy tests show an average of 29.8 miles per gallon for Vega at a steady speed of 55 miles per hour, the maximum federal speed. In simulated suburban city driving (average speed 24 mph with 1.6 stops per mile), Vega averaged 26.5 mpg. Engineers conducted the tests at our Proving Ground. Cars were Vega Hatchbacks equipped with standard engine and transmission and popular options. In all tests, cars carried the weight of two passengers. Of course the mileage you'll get depends on how and where you drive.

12 NOVAS, FROM $2647*

2-door, 3-doors, and Chevy's lowest priced 4-door.

Nova was a sensible car when it was first introduced, and it's even more sensible today. Low priced, uncomplicated, solid—with the room you want plus the economy you need. Choice of thrifty 6-cylinder engine or efficient V8, a dozen different models in all. Need lots of load space? Look into the Nova Hatchback, with the big back door and the six-foot floor.

3 CAMAROS, FROM $2890*

You're looking at the lowest priced car in its class.

True. At $2890, the 6-cylinder Camaro Sport Coupe is the lowest priced car in its class, and it's a mighty good-looking, good-driving car for the money. Sensibly sporty, with plenty of traditional Chevrolet value built in. Camaro is also available in V8 models, including the luxurious Type LT which has, among other things, an especially nice interior.

FOR FRIDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): A rightly determined attitude will carry weight; persuade with tact and respect for others' feelings. Keep everything on time and in place.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Planetary influences are somewhat mixed now, so aim at steadiness. Rely upon knowledge intelligently sought, and upon good advice. Do not depend solely on your own ideas.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Clear thinking and direct action may be necessary for you to overcome interference with your plans. Refuse to let anyone or anything distract you from the tasks at hand.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Fine lunar influences. Be in readiness to act when an opening or opportunity of work appears. You make friends easily; should turn this gift to good advantage.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Some situations are changing. Good organization of work matters essential. Direct energies to the area where they will do the most good.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Be sure of the logic of your statements and decisions; recognize a bright idea — yours or another's. Put into action whatever methods most likely to succeed.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Do not depart from a rightly chosen path. Listen to your instincts and conscience. There's a world of things to accomplish — now and in the future.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): Appraise your own work and actions objectively. Are there loopholes you are using to evade what you are truly capable of handling? THIS is a time for review.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): There's a tendency now to take on more than is wise and run down energy, become irritated. Avoid it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You now have a chance to capitalize on some of your finest gifts, two being adaptability and enterprise. But keep reins in check. Don't be overly aggressive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Make a slow enough start to insure steadiness and careful footing. Don't rush anything through just to "finish it." Timing important; also self-confidence.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Avoid "fussiness" with details, plans. Be cautious but not to the extreme. A bright day is in the making. YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a gregarious nature, a good mind and great versatility. You can cope with the most complex situations in a highly competent manner yet, with all this, you tend, at times, to lose confidence in yourself, to worry too much about what others think of your efforts. These tendencies can lead to defeatism, so try to curb them. When at your optimistic best, NOTHING can stop your climb to success. Birthdate of: Andrew Jackson, 7th Pres., U.S.A.; Harry James, jazz musician.

Streaker Livens Up Hockey Tilt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angeles right wing Mike Murphy didn't know it when he arrived at the Forum for his club's game against the Pittsburgh Penguins Wednesday night, but a woman was about to streak in his honor.

Apparently, she had called a Los Angeles radio station Tuesday to say she would streak before the National Hockey League contest "so that Mike Murphy will see me."

About ten minutes before the game, the well-endowed young lady made good her promise. Clad only in a Kings cap and carrying a team banner — not even skates — the woman tiptoed onto the ice with a security policeman in pursuit.

She scampered the length of the ice — with better form than Bobby Orr or Yvan Cournoyer — and made it through an exit untouched. The Forum guard slipped and skidded on the ice to the cheers of the crowd.

By the way, the Kings won the game 5-1.

Elsewhere in the NHL, the Chicago Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens tied 3-3; the Minnesota North Stars clubbed the Atlanta Flames, 5-1; and the Detroit Red Wings stopped the California Seals 5-2.

In the World Hockey Association, where no streaking was reported, the Cleveland Crusaders trimmed the slumping Winnipeg Jets 4-3 and the Vancouver Blazers defeated the Los Angeles Sharks 6-2.

In 1971, Canada became the first country in the world to transport letters weighing up to eight ounces exclusively by air to foreign countries.

Views On Television

WASHINGTON (AP) — According to a study cited by the American Newspaper Publishers Association, 476 broadcast stations—97 of them TV—are in common ownership with newspapers in whose markets they operate.

The study was made three years ago and hasn't been updated, according to an ANPA spokeswoman.

But the Federal Communications Commission, which five years ago first proposed rules on how many stations any firm can own in a single market, will take another whack at it in mid-June. And what they do could markedly affect newspaper-broadcast combinations.

The FCC's June hearings on broadcast ownership were scheduled after the Justice Department's antitrust division petitioned the agency in a case involving newspaper-broadcast ties for the fourth time this year.

The four petitions all ask that license renewals be denied in St. Louis, Des Moines and Minneapolis for radio-TV stations in which four newspaper publishing firms have a financial interest.

Justice officials say the petitions aim at preventing excessive economic concentration in local advertising revenues and at promoting greater diversity of local news outlets in individual markets.

The actions sent shock waves through the broadcast industry, but did they prompt the FCC's new round of ownership hearings?

"I don't know that you could say it's like night follows day," said the FCC's general counsel, John W. Pettit, in an interview before he left the FCC this week to go into private practice.

"I think it certainly causes us to focus on the problem again," he said. "Frankly, there's sort of a feeling around here...that we ought to fish or cut bait on this."

Justice officials emphatically deny suggestions the sudden burst of petitions-to-deny—three in January, one this month—were politically motivated.

A spokesman said the department simply grew impatient waiting for the FCC to act on proposed local broadcast ownership rules and "we finally felt impelled to go ahead and challenge the licenses on a case-by-case basis."

He didn't rule out the possibility more petitions would be filed in coming weeks and months. To date, the FCC only has barred the purchase by a single person or firm of a television and AM-FM radio station combination in the same market.

Enactment Of Amnesty Plan Doubted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of Congress' first inquiry on the subject says he doubts amnesty for Vietnam war deserters and draft evaders will be enacted this year.

"These three days of hearings have shown grave differences over the issue," Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., said in an interview. "I just don't think we're close to resolving it, that's all."

Kastenmeier said he does not think it is likely that his House Judiciary subcommittee will put out a bill this year and said there has been no movement in the Senate on the issue.

He denied public speculation that the politically volatile issue of amnesty will be put off because of November's congressional elections, saying amnesty can win a congressman votes as well as lose them for him.

Proposals were varied during the Kastenmeier subcommittee's three days of hearings.

The sharpest contrast came at Wednesday's final hearing with Reps. Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y., and Ronan V. Dellums, D-Calif., proposing near total amnesty and the Pentagon urging none.

Identical bills by Abzug and Dellums would grant automatic unconditional blanket amnesty to deserters, draft resisters and nonviolent war protesters and set up an amnesty board to determine other war-related violations to get amnesty.

"These young men have already paid a huge price for this exercise of conscience," Ms. Abzug said, contending they suffered exile, underground existence and in some cases jail.

"They should not be penalized further for their refusal or inability to support an illegal and unconstitutional war and what many now view as the most immoral war in our history."

Privacy Bill

Under Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — A newspaper's traditional freedom to obtain and print criminal records would be curbed severely by proposed bills aimed at guarding individual privacy, a Senate panel has been told.

Spokesman for three national news-media associations advised caution Wednesday in the consideration of bills intended to protect the right to privacy for restricting access to the national computerized criminal records maintained by the FBI.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the constitutional rights subcommittee, said such information would remain available from court records and from what individual policemen choose to tell reporters.

All three panelists disagreed and John R. Finnegan, chairman of the Freedom of Information Committee of The Associated Press Managing Editors Association told Ervin:

"I believe this legislation would discourage any cooperation that we now have in getting access to public records.... That policeman is in no way going to tell our reporters anything at all because he's staring a $10,000 fine in the face."

Finnegan, who also is executive editor of the St. Paul Dispatch and Pioneer Press, said that while the purpose behind Ervin's bill and that of a similar measure drafted by the Nixon administration is laudable, there is a danger that the public right to know may be eroded.

Harold W. Andersen, president of the Omaha World-Herald and vice chairman of the American Newspapers Publishers Association, cited several examples in which he said his newspaper could not have performed its "journalistic job" had not arrest and conviction records been available.

Television Film Plane Crashes; 36 Aboard Dead

BISHOP, Calif. (AP) — A twin-engine chartered airplane carrying a television film crew smashed into a mountainside in the rugged eastern Sierra, killing all 36 persons aboard, officials said today.

A helicopter pilot who spotted the burning wreckage in mountainous terrain six miles east of here and landed at the scene said the Sierra Pacific Airlines Convair 440 had disintegrated.

"They were all dead," said Mike Antoniou. "All that we saw was a lot of burning. There was no apparent response to yells."

"It was a very black night. The plane was disintegrated. The biggest part I saw was the tail section. The bodies were burned very badly."

The propeller-driven plane was chartered by Los Angeles-based Wolper Productions for filming the television series, "Primal Man."

The flight was bound for Burbank, about 200 miles south of the crash scene, when it smashed into a ridge in darkness shortly after taking off from the Bishop airport Wednesday night, officials said.

A spokesman said the film crew had been in the area since Monday.

Stan Margulies, vice president of Wolper Productions, said the firm had chartered the plane to transport 31 persons from the cast and crew of "Primal Man" back home Wednesday night.

Mike Gray, a Wolper spokesman, said the passengers included writer-director Dennis Azzarela, actors, stuntmen and technicians.

One of the dead actors was identified as Janos Prohaska, 51, who has played animals in a variety of roles on television and in movies. His roles included the cookie-mooching bear on the Andy Williams TV show. His son also died in the crash.

Gray said the crew had traveled to the Mammoth Mountain resort area near Bishop because a snow setting was needed to film a Siberian tiger hunt by actors made up to portray Neanderthal men.

The sequence was to be included in the third segment of the four-part series on early man's struggle for survival, Gray said. The sequence was to have been shown May 2.

A tiger had been rented for the filming, but Margulies said the animal was to be returned to Los Angeles by truck.

The plane hit at the 7,000-foot level of the White Mountains, which range up to 8,800 feet high, according to reports from Inyo National Forest officials, the Inyo County sheriff, the Federal Aviation Administration and the Civil Air Patrol.

The weather was clear at the time of the crash at 8:24 p.m. PDT, said the FAA.

The FAA said the cause of the crash was not known. Officials said no known distress call was made.

An airlines spokesman in Bishop said two pilots, an observer pilot, a hostess and a passenger service representative were aboard.

Oil Embargo Lifted, Vice President Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford said today he understands the Arab oil embargo against the United States has been lifted and an official announcement is expected shortly.

"It's my understanding that the oil embargo has been lifted," Ford said in a televised interview.

The Vice President said he had talked earlier today with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger who has been leading efforts to have the Arab oil embargo, invoked since the Mideast war began last October, lifted.

"The particular announcement, the official announcement, will come at a later date, a day or two from now," Ford said.

Agreement to end the oil war against the United States, but not against the Netherlands, was reported after a meeting Wednesday of nine Arab oil ministers in a Tripoli hotel.

It was not announced officially because Libya remained firmly opposed to any easing of the embargo and refused to permit the announcement on its territory, the sources said.

A brief communique said the ministers adjourned "to consult their governments." A Libyan source said they would meet again Sunday in Vienna during a price-fixing session of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and may announce the Tripoli decision then.

Several participants in the meeting said a "positive decision" on the embargo was taken, but they declined to give details.

In Washington, a spokesman for the Nixon Administration indicated it would release reserve oil supplies to give the American economy a boost as soon as Arab oil starts heading for the United States again. But one high official of the Federal Energy Office said a key question was whether the Arabs would resume production at the pre-October level or maintain the cuts of 25 per cent or more they ordered to put pressure on countries not affected by the embargo.

Sources in Tripoli gave no indication whether full production would be restored. But Libya's undersecretary for petroleum affairs said he believed the embargo would remain in force against the Netherlands "because Rotterdam is a key oil port, and keeping pressure on the Netherlands is a way of keeping pressure on all of Europe."

Before the embargo was decreed on Oct. 17, the United States imported between 10 and 14 per cent of its oil from Arab states. The reported decision to start this oil flowing again was a major diplomatic victory for Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and for President Anwar Sadat of Egypt.

Sadat had campaigned vigorously for such action to reward the United States for its help in getting Israeli troops to withdraw from the Suez Canal and to spur American efforts to arrange a similar disengagement of Israeli and Syrian forces on the Golan Heights. He was opposed by Libya's fiery president, Col. Moammar Khadafi, and President Houari Boumedienne of Algeria. But he apparently won over King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, the key man since his country is the biggest supplier of Arab oil to the U.S.

Problems Remain Even If Oil Flows

WASHINGTON (AP) — The anticipated end of the five-month-old Arab oil embargo should relieve U.S. fuel shortages, but it probably won't bring back business-as-usual.

Arab spokesmen have already issued reminders that the embargo can be used again if things don't go well in the Middle East, and U.S. energy officials don't want the United States to be caught with an even greater dependence on Arab oil if that should happen.

Those two factors alone add up to the need, already expressed by U.S. energy officials, to keep saving fuel after the embargo ends.

Just how much the nation may have to save depends on factors not yet revealed by the Arabs after their meeting Wednesday in Tripoli.

A high Libyan official told a newsman the Arab nations decided to lift the embargo.

But he did not say when; or whether Arab production would return to pre-embargo levels; or whether it would be increased to meet rising U.S. demand; or whether Arab oil prices, tripled since September, may be reduced.

Counting tanker travel time,

processing time and distribution time, it may take six to eight weeks for Arab oil to begin reaching the U.S. marketplace once the embargo ends.

U.S. officials estimate it could take up to three months for oil imports to return to preembargo levels.

But U.S. petroleum demand has been rising steadily each year; domestic production has stagnated, and officials say new demands can only be met by increased imports for the next few years, mainly from the Middle East.

If the Arabs decide not to increase production, the United States may have to conserve oil with increasing stringency until new U.S. energy resources can be developed.

On the other hand, if the Arabs make available unlimited oil imports, U.S. officials may still press fuel conservation to keep those imports down.

When the embargo struck last October, the United States depended on the Arabs for about 12 per cent of its petroleum, and the pinch hurt. It would hurt a lot more if a new embargo came after U.S. imports of Arab oil were allowed to reach 20 or 30 per cent.

That is why energy chief William E. Simon says his toughest job will be to carry through on present policies for fuel conservation and energy development after the embargo and, with it, the immediate emergency ends.

An end to the embargo would bring no relief at all to the problem of paying for foreign oil at the new, high prices. In fact, unless the prices were reduced, the increase of imports would only make the balance of payments problem worse.

Senate Approves Death Penalty Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has passed a bill designed to overcome the 1972 Supreme Court decision against the death penalty.

The bill, passed Wednesday by a 54-33 vote, would restore under certain circumstances the death penalty for treason, espionage or murder.

No early action on the bill is expected in the House, partly because its Judiciary Committee is occupied with an inquiry into the possible impeachment of President Nixon.

The vote, after two days of Senate debate, revealed sharply conflicting views over the value of the death penalty as a deterrent to crime.

Some opponents also questioned the constitutionality of the bill and others denounced it as morally repugnant.

Among those who voted against it were Sens. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., both of whom have had immediate members of their family murdered.

Submitted to Congress by Nixon a year ago, the bill is designed to overcome the Supreme Court ruling that the death penalty, as applied under existing laws, was unconstitutional.

A score of states have since passed measures to restore the death penalty, many of them similar to the bill approved by the Senate.

Shortly before passage, the Senate

tabled by a 68-21 vote an amendment by Kennedy to require the registration of all handguns and the licensing of their owners.

Also tabled 58 to 31, was another Kennedy amendment to ban the production and sale of "Saturday Night Specials" and other snub-nosed handguns.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., floor manager of the bill, said the injection of controversial gun-control measures was a tactic aimed at killing the legislation.

The bill would restore the death penalty for espionage, treason and certain other federal crimes, like kidnapping and airplane hijacking, resulting in death.

A death sentence would be mandatory if a jury or a judge, in a separate proceeding after a trial, found one or more aggravating factors and no mitigating factors.

But if any of the mitigating factors listed in the bill, like being under 18 years of age, were found, a death sentence would be barred.

Other mitigating factors include a defendant's having significantly impaired mental capacity, acting under unusual or substantial duress, being a relatively minor participant in the crime and not having been reasonably able to foresee that his conduct would cause a risk of death to another.

Patient Abuses Bared In Lima State Hospital Report

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Neglect and abuse of patients at Lima State Hospital for mentally disturbed criminals is detailed in a report released Wednesday by the Ohio attorney general.

The 135-page document, now before the U.S. District Court in Toledo, describes serious shortages of doctors, psychologists and social workers.

It discusses subhuman treatment of patients, many of whom are housed in 6-by-9 foot cells without running water or toilet facilities.

A staff psychologist tells how inadequate testing methods and reviews of records often lead to the indefinite commitment of persons who are not "insane."

Testimony from other staff members indicates that during the period of the investigation, August 1973-January 1974, there was little effort, or hope, for rehabilitation of the mildly disturbed or training for the mentally retarded.

The report climaxes a six-month investigation by the Ohio attorney general's office begun in the wake of a civil lawsuit filed in May, 1973, by a group of hospital inmates against hospital officials.

The findings of the report have been confirmed by attorneys for the patients, Atty. Gen. William Brown said.

In releasing the document Wednesday, Dr. Kenneth Gaver, director of the Ohio Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, noted several improvements at the facility since the report was completed.

Among those he said were the additions of three investigators and two ombudsmen to handle patient complaints, additional education classes and a review of food quality.

The hospital inmates have charged that their constitutional rights are being violated by their confinement without a guarantee of adequate medical or psychological treatment.

Because Ohio law requires that criminal psychopaths be judged "reasonably sane" before they can be released, the state must also provide the means for their recovery, the suit contends.

The suit is filed on behalf of all patients at Lima State Hospital, and the court's decision could significantly affect treatment standards at all state mental institutions, Brown said.

The investigation was conducted with full cooperation of the department of mental health and mental retardation, Brown said.

There are 11 physicians, eight staff psychologists, 10 social workers, 12 teachers and 14 nurses for Lima State's 731 patients.

The shortage of professional staff, blamed partly on low salaries, leads to maximum dependency on hospital attendants, the report said.

Attendants, who are required only to have a high school education and who receive mainly "on the job training," make decisions about medication, restraining a patient, special privileges, work assignments and punishment, the report says.

"It is a commonly held belief that medication can sometimes be a punitive measure because it can be painful and discomforting for the patient," the report says.

"When dealing with an especially disturbed patient, attendants can obtain extra medication by submitting appropriate forms to the pharmacy when there is no physician available. On some wards, patient workers are assigned responsibilities by the attendants of dispensing medication to patients," it states.

According to an expert witness, Dr. Gerald Clark, many patients are overmedicated and prompt efforts should be made to reduce the number of patients receiving medication, the number of drugs used, and the amount of medication given, it continues.

Attendants, not the doctors or social workers, supervise the wards.

A "typical day in the life of a patient" consists of three meals a day, an infrequent recreation period outdoors, and sitting silently in a chair in a day hall.

In most cells, patients are not permitted to keep any personal effects. They are made to strip before entering cells at night. Many of the cells are not equipped with toilet facilities or running water.

Some attendants do not permit talking during meals, and patients must ask permission to smoke, drink coffee, or go to the restroom. Depending on the ward, some patients are locked in cells at night at 6 p.m. There is no light to read, so they sleep, the report says.

"On a few occasions, the attendant staff will 'shake down' their wards four or five times a month. During a shake down, patients are required to strip naked in the day halls and their cells are searched for contraband," the report said. "On one occasion, a patient's rosary beads were found in the toilet of his cell . . ."

Since 1971, but before the filing of the complaint, 71 attendants have been discharged or disciplined for engaging in physical brutality directed to patients, the report said.

Persons are admitted to Lima State Hospital if they plead insanity in the commission of a crime, or if they are sent by another institution or by parole authorities. Under law, a person convicted of a sex-related crime must be admitted for observation.

A staff doctor and psychologist see a patient a total of 2½ hours during the 30-day observation period. Then they testify in court as to the patients' mental health, the report says.

If a judge finds the patient to be a "psychopathic offender," "mentally retarded offender" or "mentally ill," he may commit him to Lima State Hospital indefinitely.

In this case the criminal sentence is suspended and patients have no right to a judicial review until the maximum time of the sentence runs out.

Psychologists testified that tests administered at the hospital are not adequate to determine psychopathic disorders. And Dr. Watkins "believes that the definition of psychopathic offender in . . . the Ohio Revised Code is inaccurate and is no longer considered clinically valid," the report said.

A staff psychologist is quoted in the report as saying if a person accused or convicted of a crime scored particularly low on the intelligence test, and was unable to support himself in society, he would probably be confined to Lima indefinitely.

There is no individualized treatment plan for patients, the report concludes. "One psychologist commented that having an individualized treatment program for a patient is an exception to the rule . . ." the report said.

Morale is poor among psychologists and social workers because of their apparent lack of influence over the treatment and dispensation of patient cases, the report says.

Patients work 4-8 hours a day at menial or farming jobs and earn $10-$15 a month. The jobs are not related to rehabilitation, but to the manpower needs of the facility, the report says. Patient workers feed, bathe and clean cells of secluded or restrained patients at no salary.

Some doctors believe mentally retarded persons do not belong at Lima State and should be transferred to training schools. This includes several juveniles at the hospital, the report says.

Only the chief of security, Thomas Larimore, indicated he has an adequate staff of 84 persons, the report said.

Fry, Nolan Rap Gilligan On Money

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two candidates for governor have attacked the incumbent on money-related matters.

Rep. Charles E. Fry, R-75 Springfield, accused Gov. John J. Gilligan of "gross deception" in the distribution of state income tax revenues for higher education.

At a news conference in Akron, Fry said that of nearly $5 billion generated by the tax during the biennium, only three per cent, or $162 million, has been given to universities and colleges.

"I have been called by a number of students asking me to support a statewide march on the state capitol," Fry said. "I have advised these students to reconsider the plan . . . and to get involved with the upcoming primary election."

Speaking in Mansfield, Democrat James D. Nolan condemned the Gilligan administration for supporting a proposal in the legislature for raising the 8 per cent interest ceiling on home owners' interest rates.

"In a telephone survey of nearly a score of banks and savings and loan companies in northeastern Ohio, we find that there is ample money available for the purchase of homes," Nolan said.

"I call upon Gilligan to raise his voice strongly in opposition" to the proposal, Nolan said.

Taft, Metzenbaum Split On Gun Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio's two U.S. senators cast opposite votes Wednesday as the Senate passed 54-33 a bill to restore the death penalty for espionage, treason and certain other federal crimes.

Sen. Robert Taft Jr., a Republican, voted for the measure and Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, a Democrat, against.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market slipped into a mixed pattern today after a brief early rally in response to the news that the Arab oil embargo apparently would be ended.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 1.72 at 889.94 after a rise of about 8 points in the first half-hour of the session. Advancing issues, however, hung on to a 7-to-5 lead over declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the expected resumption of Arab oil shipments to the United States had been "discounted" largely—anticipated in earlier advances—in the stock market. They said some traders appeared to be following a traditional practice of buying in anticipation of a favorable development, then cashing in on profits when the event actually occurred.

Howard Johnson, up 1/2 at 11 1/2, was the Big Board's volume leader and one of several travel-related issues on the active list.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was up .86 at 101.84.

The Amex volume leader was Champion Home Builders, down 1/4 at 5 1/4.

ZIP Code Usage Good By Local Mailers

Postmaster Charles H. Walters today thanked postal customers in Circleville for their regular use of the Zip Code with mailing addresses.

"Customers in the 13-states Central Region in which Circleville is a part, lead the other four Postal Regions with an 89.1 per cent Zip Code usage. According to recent figures, the national average for Zip Code usage by mailers reached 87.3 per cent," Postmaster Walters said.

Postmaster Walters said the success of the Zip Code is well established. Its public acceptance has come a long way from that first day nearly 11 years ago when the program was launched in Washington with a special Ethel Merman version of "Zip-A-Dee Doo-Dah" that was to be heard in thousands of promotional spots on radio and television around the country.

It was on July 1, 1963, that the Postal System's Zoning Improvement Program went into effect. There was an immediate furor over the advent of Zip Coding, but the people who predicted dire things for the future of the U.S. Mail as a result of adding five figures to an address have long since been proven wrong.

"Fortunately, there were those who also recognized that a growing population, a more mobile life style, and a growing volume of mail (it was 30 billion pieces in 1942, 49 billion in 1952, 67 billion in 1962, and now 90 billion) would require an addressing system more sophisticated than the one that had been used for the previous hundred years," Postmaster Walters said.

"There also had been great controversy in 1963, when the Post Office Department came up with the then radical concept that mail should be addressed by street and number. Before then, mail sent to a name in a city or town, that individual had to come to the post office to pick it up," he said.

He noted that fears that the Zip Code would speed the demise of the identity of American place names have proven groundless. "Just look through the current directory of post offices, and you'll find the continuing existence of such places as Alpha, Illinois; Gas, Kansas; Weeping Water, Nebraska; Zap, North Dakota; Tea, South Dakota; Luck, Wisconsin," he said.

"None has been endangered by the addition of the five-digit Zip Code as part of its mailing address. On the contrary, the residents of these places—as well as those who live in the most congested part of any metropolis—now can be located more quickly, more accurately, and at less cost than would be possible without the mechanized applications of Zip Coding."

Ellsberg Break-In Arraignment Held

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four men pleaded innocent today to a charge stemming from the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Counsel for one of the defendants told newsmen upon entering the courthouse that he expects to call President Nixon as a defense witness.

Entering innocent pleas were G. Gordon Liddy, Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio R. Martinez and Felipe De Diego.

They were charged with violating the civil rights of Dr. Lewis Fielding. Former presidential aides Charles W. Colson and John D. Ehrlichman pleaded innocent to the same charge when arraigned last Saturday. The six men were indicted by a federal grand jury on March 7.

The conspiracy charge carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Liddy, Martinez and Barker were defendants in the original Watergate break-in trial.

Henry Rothblatt, counsel for De Diego, a Miami realtor, told newsmen he intends to subpoena "every relevant witness."

Asked if that included the President, Rothblatt replied, "I think he'll be a very relevant witness."

Liddy was the last to arrive in the courtroom. In contrast to earlier appearances when he looked pale and gaunt, Liddy was tanned and fit. He was greeted enthusiastically by Barker, Martinez and De Diego.

All of the defense counsel indicated to U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell that they anticipated problems obtaining government records pertaining to the Ellsberg break-in. Gesell suggested they confer with the prosecutor's office before filing any motions.

A California state judge had ruled that Nixon was a relevant defense witness in the trial of charges returned by a Los Angeles County grand jury in connection with the same break-in. California prosecutors agreed to drop the charges after the federal grand jury had acted.

Gesell asked defense counsel to file motions within 10 days giving their suggestion for a trial date and whether they believe Ehrlichman should be tried separately. Ehrlichman also is charged with lying to the FBI and the grand jury.

Liddy is in custody, serving a sentence for contempt stemming from his refusal to testify before a grand jury.

De Diego's attorney said the defendant believes he was carrying out government orders when he participated in the Fielding office burglary.

Impeachment Group Avoids White House Confrontation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Judiciary Committee has headed off, at least for the moment, a confrontation with the White House over impeachment evidence.

Despite White House statements indicating stiffening resistance to committee requests for tapes and documents, Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., convinced members more time was needed to determine whether President Nixon will cooperate.

However, Rodino left no doubt that if Nixon refuses to part with the information being sought the committee will subpoena it.

Rodino said Wednesday that the material the committee wants is necessary to the investigation and the Constitution gives the committee an unchallenged right to it. Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., the committee's senior Republican, agreed.

"The requests made by the committee to date are very reasonable and relevant," Hutchinson said. "The White House should be totally cooperative with us."

However, the White House as yet has made no response to the committee's Feb. 25 request for tapes of conversations between Nixon and his top aides last year when the Watergate cover-up was unraveling.

And Tuesday White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler and Bryce Harlow, a presidential counselor, in separate blasts at the committee, served notice the White House will resist any requests for broad-scale access to its files.

Nixon has promised to give the committee everything on Watergate he gave to the grand jury. However, the committee is investigating many other areas besides Watergate.

Rodino persuaded Democratic members of the committee that further talks should be held between committee and White House lawyers before any move to subpoena White House evidence.

Although Rodino managed to at least postpone any action on a subpoena, he did not succeed in satisfying all committee members.

Some 950,000 Canadians a year go to Florida, mostly during the winter months, for holidays.

Shultz Quits Treasury Post Effective May

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon accepted with "a sense of personal regret" today the resignation of Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, effective in early May.

Announcing the impending departure of the last member of Nixon's original cabinet to still hold federal office, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said the President feels Shultz "has served with great distinction," starting as secretary of labor in 1969.

Noting that Shultz has talked several times of a desire to return to private life, Warren said the 53-year-old economist would continue to "assume special assignments" after leaving the Treasury post he has held since June 12, 1972.

Warren described Shultz as "a pillar of this administration and this government" and said Nixon has asked him to express "our enormous respect, affection and appreciation for Secretary Shultz."

Asked if Deputy Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, who also serves as the federal energy chief, would be in line to succeed Shultz, Warren said, "I won't go down a check list of names." He added that Simon obviously is well regarded in administration circles.

Besides serving as Treasury chief, Shultz held the dual appointment of assistant to the President for economic affairs — a position he will also leave.

Vietnam Veteran Bonus Information Available

Pickaway County Veterans Service Officer, James P. Shea, has announced that he received preliminary information concerning the Ohio Vietnam Veterans Bonus. The information contains six points of vital interest, Shea stated.

Initial distribution of bonus application forms within Ohio will be made to county veterans' service officers. Only applications for use by living veterans will be available at that time.

Forms for use by next-of-kin of deceased veterans must be requested from bonus headquarters. Furthermore, all out-of-state requests will also be handled by the Columbus office.

When applications are ready, a definite time (zero hour), and a specified date (D-Day), will be designated for initial distribution to veterans presently residing in Ohio. This will ensure simultaneous distribution and no applicant will have a time advantage over any other.

With the cooperation of the Ohio National Guard, each county's bulk allocation of forms will be delivered over a weekend immediately preceding "D-Day."

It will be the direct responsibility of each county service officer to insure that no application forms are in the hands of any veteran-applicant before "Zero-Hour" on "D-Day."

To maintain the distribution plan, the county service officers only will assume the responsibility of coordinating further distribution of forms to other volunteer agencies in his county.

Indications seem to be, the local service officer said, that it will be another 45 days at least, before the bonus applications are printed, and "D-Day" is announced.

There will be plenty of advance information both by newspaper, radio, and by TV, so that all veterans will know exactly when they can secure their application blanks.

Presbytery Meeting Slated

Presbytery will convene at 4 p.m. and after a 6 p.m. dinner, worship service will be held and installation ceremonies conducted for the Rev. Lowell Simms as associate for Presbytery ministries.

It is my plan, Shea continued, to keep my office open in the court house on an evening and on Saturday morning for at least two weeks to take care of the initial rush of applications, and, I also plan to have applications available, if possible, in Ashville, New Holland and Williamsport.

In the meantime, Shea said, it would be wise for all veterans who served in Vietnam, or who had any combat pay in Southeast Asia to bring their DD 214 (Report of Separation) to my office in the basement of the court house. Unless that DD 214 shows exactly how many days was served in Vietnam, we will have to write a letter to the proper service department to secure the information.

We have been doing this for the past 45 days, and the indications are that it takes at least 35 days for the veteran to get a reply. If the requests are made inside of the next two weeks, the veteran stands a good chance of getting the exact Vietnam service time back before the Bonus applications are available.

For further information, or if you have any questions on the Vietnam Bonus, contact the local service officer, located in the basement of the court house, or phone 474-3650.

U.S., Russia Compete In Modern Arms Klambach Linked To Dairy Funds

EDITOR'S NOTE — Pentagon planners believe conventional military forces are an increasingly important deterrent to war in a nuclear age. Here is a report on the strength of the United States and of the Soviet Union in troops and conventional weapons.

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has about four million men under arms, twice as many as the United States. The Pentagon seeks to offset those numbers with technical superiority.

Russian armed manpower and weapons have been increasing steadily, while U.S. conventional military strength now has leveled off after five years of severe cutbacks.

With each nation capable of inflicting colossal nuclear damage on the other, U.S. planners believe conventional forces are even more important to deter lesser war and to repel limited threats.

Strategic arms limitation talks are aimed at restricting nuclear offensive weapons, but there are no moves to put a lid on conventional ground, sea and air forces of the world's two biggest military powers—although NATO and Warsaw Pact diplomats are trying to negotiate a mutual thinning-out in Central Europe.

On the ground, the Soviets hold a huge edge in armor and firepower, with four times as many tanks and three times as many artillery pieces.

At sea, the Russian navy outnumbers the U.S. Navy in major warships and submarines. But the U.S. Navy will start recovering from a steep downslide later this year when its modernization program begins paying off in new destroyers and other surface vessels.

In the air, there is a virtual standoff in numbers between the Soviet air force and the combined fighter and bomber fleets of the U.S. Air Force, Navy and Marines. Each side has about 4,800 planes in these categories.

The Pentagon's approach is to try to offset or overcome Soviet superiority in quantity by exploiting U.S. technology to gain a qualitative advantage in weapons, aircraft and other equipment.

But the Russians have been driving to overcome U.S. leads in technology. In some cases, Soviet hardware surpasses its American counterparts.

The quality score is far from clear-cut.

For example, the United States is still rated well ahead of the Soviet Union in antisubmarine warfare and superior in tactical air support of ground troops. On the other hand, the Russian navy has formidable ship-to-ship missiles, while the U.S. Navy is straining to catch up. Soviet artillery outranges U.S. field guns.

The Mideast war last October pointed up the excellence of Soviet-made antitank and newer antiaircraft missiles such as the SA6—and, conversely, the effectiveness of advanced U.S. weapons like the TV-guided Maverick tank-killing missile.

The Russians apparently give their ground, sea and air forces at least as high a priority as do their Pentagon opposites. By all available intelligence indicators, the Soviets have been lavishing resources on their conventional forces.

"We have seen a growth in real sophistication in Soviet weaponry and equipment in recent years," said Gen. Creighton Abrams, Army chief of staff. "...They spend very heavily to gain even a small advantage, to incorporate nice-to-have features which we forego because of cost."

Despite Abrams' complaints about cost constraints, the Army is pushing dozens of development projects, including a new main battle tank, two new howitzers, four new helicopters and improved antiaircraft missiles.

The Army's research chief, Lt. Gen. John R. Deane Jr., said: "Our answer to their use of quantity must be quality."

But the Soviets are sustaining both quantity and quality, especially in Eastern Europe.

Even while tying down half a million troops in the Far East opposite China, Russia has kept some 450,000 men and more than 8,000 tanks in East Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

These Soviet forces are the backbone of the 925,000 men and 15,500 tanks deployed by Warsaw Pact nations in position to strike into NATO's central region.

In the past few years, U.S. intelligence has reported that the Russians have been putting more of these troops on wheels, with some 4,000 additional armored personnel carriers sent to the Warsaw Pact area.

The Russians are also stressing self-propelled field artillery to keep pace with faster moving ground troops. A new Soviet armed assault helicopter appeared in East Germany last fall.

Holding the pivotal position on NATO's central front are 190,000 U.S. ground troops and about 2,000 tanks in West Germany. Counting the Americans, NATO countries and France have some 890,000 troops and 6,000 tanks available to defend their region.

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, while acknowledging Warsaw Pact numerical superiority in tanks, claims that NATO has important advantages in tank destroyers, antitank weapons and logistics support.

However, geography is on the side of Russia when it comes to the all-important ability to reinforce battlefield forces in Eastern Europe quickly.

Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, says the Soviet Union "appears to be making a determined effort to erase the longheld advantage in the ground attack role held by U.S. tactical air forces."

The Russians are producing a series of new-generation fighters and fighter bombers, which are expected to replace at least half of today's models over the coming five years.

Moorer said Soviet tactical air forces "hold major quantitative and some qualitative advantages in the air superiority role."

However, he predicted that U.S. tactical air will emerge ahead during the 1980s. Moorer pinned his prediction chiefly on continued acquisition of the Air Force's F15 fighter, due to become operational in 1976, and the Navy's F14 fighter, which is already entering the force.

The Mideast war provided a test for both U.S. and Soviet airlifts. Both did well, according to American experts. But the American task was tougher because it covered over 6,000 miles, while the Russian flights were much shorter.

The experience, particularly the denial of base stopover privileges by some U.S. allies, has convinced Schlesinger that U.S. long-range airlift capacity must be expanded. He has proposed stretching C141 transport planes and modifying commercial jumbo jets to carry military cargo in emergencies.

Apart from Russia's surge in nuclear striking power, the growth of the Soviet navy within the past decade has evoked the deepest concern at the Pentagon.

Some Western naval authorities have declared the U.S. Navy already in second place. Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr. told Congress that "the balance ... has shifted during the past five years, and right now we are at a very critical point."

Others, however, are less gloomy. While indicating concern, Adm. Moorer said in early March that "the U.S. still has the edge in the global reach of our fleets, through our carrier and amphibious task forces."

But Moorer cautioned that the Soviet Union is building "a modern and increasingly powerful naval force ..."

Schlesinger said: "I do not subscribe to the alarmist statements alleging the current superiority of the Soviet fleet."

The U.S. Navy is bottoming out after five years of retiring older ships in large numbers. This year the Navy will have only 174 major combatant surface ships, compared to the Soviet Union's 221.

For the next several years, new U.S. ships will be coming out of the yards faster than old ships are retired. The surface combat fleet should climb back to about 230 ships.

The Navy is embarking on production of entirely new classes of austere patrol frigates, minicarriers, hydrofoils and other craft, hopefully at lower prices.

In submarines, the Russians outnumber the United States by about 315 to 115. But many of the Soviet undersea craft are older diesel-powered models.

The first of a group of advanced U.S. nuclear attack subs soon will become operational. Navy experts claim they are superior to the best Soviet sub because of better quietness and sonar.

The Soviets also are modernizing their underwater force and will maintain a 2 to 1 edge in numbers by the early 1980s, according to U.S. calculations.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Former dairy official Dwight L. Morris says he'll repeat under oath his contested second-hand story that Herbert W. Klambach agreed to kill a government antitrust suit for a $300,000 donation to President Nixon's 1972 campaign.

Morris, former secretary of the Texas-based Associated Milk Producers, Inc., has told Watergate investigators that the giant cooperative's president, John Butterbrodt, told him about the abortive deal in April 1972, after it had fallen through.

Morris quoted Butterbrodt as saying that Klambach, who was a top Nixon fund raiser, called the deal off because of unfavorable publicity surrounding the administration's handling of another antitrust case, against the International Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Morris is scheduled to take the stand today in an open court proceeding in the antitrust case which he says the co-op's top leadership tried to kill.

Interviewed by telephone at his 89-acre cattle farm near Siloam Springs, Ark., Morris said he would stick to his story even though the co-op's lawyers have branded it as false and untrue and even though Butterbrodt denies it.

But federal investigators say they have evidence to support Morris' hearsay testimony, evidence that includes $150,000 in checks, apparently intended for political donations, which were signed by co-op officials but voided without explanation.

Klambach couldn't be reached for comment Tuesday. An associate, who asked not to be named, said Klambach hadn't been aware of Morris' allegation. Klambach recently pleaded guilty to a two-count Watergate indictment charging him with running an illegal fund-raising effort in 1970 and of selling an ambassador's appointment for political donations.

Bonus For Skills

Army recruiters are checking the unemployed and offering some of them faster than usual promotion and higher pay to enlist. No, this isn't a plot to reduce unemployment and satisfy the manpower requirements of the volunteer Army.

Recruiters are only interested in persons with certain skills which the Army needs, and they ingeniously have coupled that interest with the needs of the unemployed. Under a "Stripes for Skills" program, the Army is looking for people already skilled in some 100 mechanical or technical jobs.

Prospects who pass the usual tests, plus an additional one to show their competence in one of the required skills, are offered extra credits upon induction. That bonus enables them to start their way up the promotion ladder in a shorter time.

No one currently employed is eligible for the program. The Army is not eager to compete with private employers for manpower. But if it can save itself the time and expense of training in job skills, it is worth the extra incentive.

Global Price List

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — People ... Places ... Prices ...

A Swiss bank, the UnionBank of Switzerland, has been thoughtful enough to issue a booklet every traveler should have in his pocket when and if he ventures away from hearth, home, and the only kind of money he understands. It is titled "Prices and Earnings Around the Globe." It's a comparison of purchasing power in 37 cities.

For example did you know that an average expensive unfurnished 3-room apartment in New York rents for $550? The price for a similar pad in Lisbon is $178; in Tokyo $1,110.

A typical restaurant meal in New York — without drinks, and not at "21" — costs $10.20, $11.05 in Montreal, and an unnerving $1.16 in Bombay. A yearly subscription to the New York Times (home delivered) is $117 in New York city. The price for the Chicago Tribune is $61.80, but you can get Helsinki's Helsingin Sanomat for only $27.79. And then hire a beautiful $10,000-a-year secretary to read it to you.

TV sets are cheapest in the U.S., but clothing is cheaper in London than New York. Scandinavians pay more than six cents for every cigaret.

"Devaluation, particularly of the U.S. dollar, led to a situation in which, for competitive reasons, prices on the export markets could not be adjusted sufficiently to keep pace with parity changes," the bank observes. "That is why at the end of July and the beginning of August, 1973, the Volkswagen could be bought more cheaply in New York, San Francisco, London, Luxembourg and Mexico City than in Dusseldorf, where it is made."

"On the other hand, the Volkswagen costs $6,259 in Tel Aviv, $9,094 in Istanbul and $11,071 in Bogota." (Ed. Note: Bah HumBUG.)

You can ride a bus for miles and miles in Bogota for three cents. But when you wake up, you're still in Bogota. A personnel manager, let's say, holding down a $20,000-a-year job in Stockholm can expect to pay 48 per cent of it in taxes. The bank reveals no great secret when it says that the U.S. has the world's highest living standard.

Geneva and Zurich rate second and third. But neither has a navy to protect you.

she put a knock on the Met for not giving her a proper chance to demonstrate that she can still step up to the plate and knock the ball out of the park.

From the sights and sounds of Callas's reception at Carnegie Hall — such as ecstatic shouts of "You are Opera!" — I thought indelible history had been made in the concert world.

But the next day, the reviewers said, in effect, that she had a voice that would scare a dog out of a boneyard. To hell with the critics. She's great.

Ask me anything about the English Channel tunnel that will link Britain with France after nearly two centuries of hemming and hawing. Tony Rocca of the Sunday Times of London is my British encyclopedia:

"Work has begun on the first tunneling phase, which means that by October — 172 years after the idea was a gleam in Napoleon's eye — Britain will be edging towards Europe at 20 feet an hour ...

"Coincidence and geological faults have led the developers to begin at exactly the spot chosen by Victorian engineers for their exploratory tunnel. This was begun and abandoned 92 years ago by a Colonel Beaumont and the Beaumont boring machine. Working with compressed air to power the machine, they progressed 11 miles before they were obliged to close the shaft because of fears of military invasion should the tunnel become reality ...

"Of the several 19th century plans for building a channel tunnel, Beaumont's was the most successful. Yet all but one came to grief for the same reason: fear of invasion from the continent. (The exception was the idea suggested by Napoleon and interpreted in 1802 by the French engineer Albert Mathieu, which flopped because ventilation problems in the candle-lit tunnel were too great to overcome.) Emphasis on the military importance of such a tunnel continued to dominate British government thinking right up to 1955."

When completed in 1980, the 32-mile tunnel will whisk travelers by train from London to Paris in two hours and 40 minutes. Unseasick.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Here is a concise summary of the United States economy that is being distributed this week by the Chase Manhattan Bank to its corporate customers and correspondent banks:

The general business slowdown is now an established fact. The odds currently favor a moderate decline in output rather than a severe drop.

Activity has tumbled in the two areas where extreme weakness was expected—autos and housing—and there are signs of hesitation in consumer spending for some other products.

But the outlook for capital spending is still good. Inventories are not yet out of hand, and monetary and fiscal policy are geared toward promoting expansion.

The slide should be limited. Expansionary public policies and strong capital spending by private business should limit the current slide to 1 per cent or 2 per cent, in real terms, from the late-1973 peak.

That decline likely will be spread over a period of two or three quarters of the year. By fall, business should begin to recover—slowly at first, but more rapidly by the second quarter of 1975.

The economy is vulnerable. "Unquestionably, the economy is in a highly vulnerable condition. In addition to energy problems and associated uncertainties about foreign trade, certain setbacks could develop."

The Chase economists listed these possible setbacks:

—Policy mistakes in Washington. If the federal Reserve's monetary policy became "dangerously restrictive," the recovery would be delayed. Such a policy is unlikely.

—Based on past performance, public policy will more likely err on the side of overstimulation rather than restraint. Under current circumstances, that would serve to perpetuate inflation and economic distortions.

—A severe letdown in consumer spending. This possibility could occur because of unemployment and inflation fears. So far, however, the public has continued to spend relatively freely for most goods and services.

But, "if consumers balk, as they did in 1969, the consequence would be a more severe recession, probably extending into 1975."

By past standards, inventories are still quite low. But in the fourth quarter of 1973 there was a large buildup, which is probably being repeated now.

"Continuation of the process could lead to a major correction in late 1974 and early 1975. This would mean a further drop in production and loss of employment."

—A decline in capital spending, rather than an anticipated increase. Capital spending plans, or spending by business for plant and equipment, appear to be solidly based.

"Nevertheless, plans could change if sales and profits decline by more than current projections."

In summary: "Even if these pitfalls are avoided, there is likely to be little or no real growth in 1974, whether measured by the average for the year or from fourth quarter to fourth quarter."

Decision Helps Pollution Effort

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A recent court decision involving the Blue Creek Coal Co. of New Philadelphia means the state doesn't have to wait for serious environmental damage to occur before it can act in pollution cases, state Natural Resources Director William Nye said today.

The firm was charged with violating Ohio's strip mine law after inspectors discovered acid water in one of its collection pits northwest of New Philadelphia.

Nye said although serious damage had not occurred, there was a threat to plant and animal life and to the quality of water in streams and lakes.

Chillicothe historian David Webb published a booklet, "Circleville Reminiscences". The material was taken from the scrapbook of the late G. F. Wittich and included a description of Circleville from 1825 to 1840.

Miller M. Fissell, on leave from the police department for a year, submitted his resignation to the city safety director as the leave of absence ended.

Plans for developing postwar airports for Circleville and Ashville were divulged in a report by Ohio Bureau of Aeronautics. This line would connect with a class "A" airfield at Chillicothe, linking other airports.

Householders in Circleville and Pickaway County were urged to save old toothpaste and shaving cream tubes and return them to their druggist. The used tubes contained about 90 per cent pure tin to be salvaged.

A St. Patrick's Day dance was held at Memorial Hall for the benefit of Youth Canteen. Servicemen from Lockbourne Air Force Base were guests of the affair, sponsored by Circleville Jaycees.

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Owens-Illinois, Inc., says it bought back more than 163 million pounds of old bottles and jars for recycling at its glass container plants last year.

The company said it paid more than $1.6 million, at a rate of a penny a pound or $20 a ton, to community and non-profit groups for enough waste glass bottles to fill more than 3,200 railroad freight cars.

"I think I've found just the one for you, Mrs. Potterfield."

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I have been told that I will soon need an operation on my prostate.

Some friends of mine in my age group were speaking about two different types of operation for this problem.

Can you "un-confuse" me?

Mr. H.D.A., Ala.

Dear Mr. A.:

"Un-confuse" is a marvelous term for those who seek clarification!

When once the decision for surgery is established, the choice of the method depends on a number of factors. All of these are taken into consideration before the time of surgery. The age of the patient, his general physical condition, the state of his heart and vascular system, and the safety of anesthesia may make one operative procedure preferable to another.

One operation, the Transurethral Prostatic Resection (TUR) is done directly through the urethra, the tube that normally carries urine from the bladder.

A second type is known as the "supra-pubic" operation in which an operation is made from the outside, just above the pubis. Sometimes this operation is done in one stage, or in two stages, depending on the surgeon's findings and the specific needs of each patient.

Whichever procedure is done, you must be assured that the chances for the safety and success of the operation are excellent.

Is it possible to X-ray the inside of the heart and know if it is in good condition?

Miss R. E., Maine

Dear Miss E.:

A method known as "angiocardiology" can now reveal almost every crevice in the inside of the heart.

Special dyes injected into the bloodstream can be tagged and followed to clearly outline the inside of the heart and the blood vessels that lead to and from it.

By other methods it is even possible to take samples of blood from each of the four chambers of the heart, to study the balance between oxygen and carbon dioxide.

These X-rays, in addition to the routine X-rays of the chest and the clinical judgment of the doctor, can unravel even the most difficult problems of the heart and the vascular system.

500 LSH Patients Could Be Released

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—More than 500 patients at Lima State Hospital could be ordered released due to a lawsuit seeking to establish a constitutional right to treatment, the attorney general's office said Tuesday.

A 130-page document, result of a special investigation of treatment and rights of prisoners at Lima State, has been filed with U.S. District Court here.

The investigation, made by the attorney general's office and lawyers

Avis Sold By ITT

NEW YORK (AP) — American Express Co. has agreed in principle to take over Avis, Inc., now a subsidiary of International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

The proposed $150 million transaction announced Tuesday would implement a 1971 Justice Department decree ordering ITT to divest itself of its 52 per cent interest in Avis, as well as other subsidiaries.

Under terms of the proposal, ITT and the public shareholders of Avis would receive $25 for each share of Avis common stock, an ITT spokesman said. At present, public shareholders own 2.9 million shares of Avis stock, and ITT owns 3.1 million shares.

The transaction is subject to the approval of the Justice Department and the boards of the directors of Avis, American Express and ITT, the spokesman said. It must also be approved by two-thirds of the public shareholders of Avis common stock.

Avis, Inc., second only to Hertz in the car rental business, operates a fleet of 119,000 vehicles in more than 2,800 locations here and abroad.

Propose Expressway Across Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Columbus Service Director Richard Jackson proposed Tuesday a six-lane expressway to be constructed to connect a planned downtown convention center with Port Columbus International Airport.

The highway could take up to 12 years to build, Jackson said. He had no estimate of the cost, but said it would be in the "millions of dollars."

Quebec is North America's only walled city.

About 85 billion Lincoln pennies have been minted since 1900.

Dispensing Setup For Gasoline Eyed

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Cincinnati City Manager E. Robert Turner has recommended purchase of a $600,000 automated gasoline dispensing system to curb losses from the city's fuel supply.

He made the request of city council Tuesday.

Turner reported earlier that about 600,000 gallons of gasoline was unaccounted for in 1973.

He blamed poor bookkeeping and pilferage.

Bill Eases Strip Mine Requirements

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Interior Committee Wednesday approved by a 20-18 vote an administration-backed amendment to relax strip mining reclamation requirements.

The amendment would allow state regulatory agencies to ease requirements if coal mining companies could not obtain the necessary equipment to meet them.

In such cases, the companies would not be bound by the bill's requirement that they return the mine site to its original contour and not dump earth down slope from the mine.

They would still be required to leave a "stable surface configuration."

Rep. Roy A. Taylor, D-N.C., who introduced the amendment, said it was part of the administration package and was drafted by the Interior Department.

Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., said the amendment was "intolerable."

"We would be inviting the coal companies to get involved in more operations than they have the equipment to comply with," Melcher said.

Taylor conceded this would be possible, but argued, "We should not be drawing up legislation in such a way as to preclude an individual in the coal business from opening up another mine."

Problems Plague State Farmers

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — Ross County farmer Allen Myers can see inflation nipping at his profit gains of the past year and it makes him uneasy.

"Really, inflation didn't hurt us last year," the 37-year-old corn and hog farmer said. "Our grain prices increased first, but now our expenses are starting to move up."

The Ohio State University graduate added, "It's kind of scary when prices increase. There isn't a heck of lot we can do to combat inflation."

This year, Myers has seen prices for his fertilizer, fuel, equipment, seed grain and labor increase and undercut some of the gains he made on a better-than-average corn market last fall.

Myers can tick off the inflation that has hit him in 1974.

"Anhydrous ammonia has increased from $85 a ton to $170," he said.

"Before, once you purchased the fertilizer, you didn't have to pay the bill until summer. Now they want you to pay in 30 days."

Myers needs anhydrous ammonia to put on the 1,110 acres of corn he plans to plant this spring. But he has had problems finding a suitable price.

"Anhydrous ammonia is extremely hard to get right now, and I have heard stories of its going anywhere from $200 to $300 a ton," he said. "If you don't have it setting on your farm, you're not assured of it."

Right now, Myers has none. "If we can't get any, we'll switch from corn to soybeans or reduce our per-acre application of fertilizer, which will reduce our production."

His cost for a combination of nitrogen and phosphorous has jumped from $96 a ton to $168. Potash has not been as bad, going from $55 a ton to $75.

Higher fuel costs have hit him as hard as the fertilizer.

"In 1973, we paid 32 cents a gallon for gasoline," he said. "Right now they just put on the big increase and it's costing us 52 cents a gallon."

"Diesel fuel, which is our big volume fuel, has gone from 16 cents a gallon in 1973 to 37 cents."

Myers uses gasoline for his trucks and small tractors, and diesel fuel for his larger tractors and combines.

His costs for repairing broken down equipment has hit him two ways.

"Repair costs are kind of hard to determine," he said, "but I estimate they have gone up 30 per cent over last year. They are using cheaper material and it's costing more. The items don't last as long, so it's hitting us two ways."

Myers said his costs for seed grain have jumped by 15 to 20 per cent over last year.

Myers has three hired hands who live on the farm and help him.

"We pay weekly or monthly salaries, furnish a house and pay most of the utilities," he said. "Based on utilities increases and other expense, our labor costs have increased by 25 per cent and we haven't given them a penny more."

Myers said his future depends on the continued high market prices for corn.

"If the prices drop back, it would put us in a serious circumstance," he said. "I don't know what we can do to soften the blow. We have no way of controlling the prices we get."

As a farmer, Myers knows market prices "can drop as fast as they go up."

On a regular basis about 100 young people are involved in service to their community at Berger Hospital, Bloodmobile and in formation of a 4-H Club with training in First Aid and Nursing Services under direction of the local Red Cross.

7 Ford Venture Into Drilling Paying Off

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A Ford Motor Co. official says Ford's "unusual entrance...into the gas-drilling business...has turned out to be a venture that is paying off."

Donald Bastian, vice president-manufacturing group, said Wednesday Ford went into the gas-drilling business in Morgan County to get fuel required to operate the Ohio Truck Plant at Avon Lake.

Under authorization from the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio, Bastian said, Ford will deliver about 2.3 billion cubic feet of gas a year to Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc.

Columbia is to deliver 50 per cent of the gas developed in Ford's fields in southeastern Ohio to the Ohio Truck Plant.

The other 50 per cent is to be made available to the public.

Bastian said Redman Oil Co., Inc., was Ford's partner in the Morgan County venture and was responsible for drilling the wells and installing 26 miles of pipe from the wells to Columbia Gas facilities at Zanesville.

Ford said when the Ohio Truck Plant was acquired in 1972 plans called for use of propane. But shortages of propane gas prompted the natural gas exploration project.

Gradison Set For Campaign

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Willis D. Gradison, the Republican defeated last week in a congressional race that drew national attention, says he's confident voters were only issuing "a message" to President Nixon and will switch back for a general election this fall.

Gradison lost his bid in a longtime Republican stronghold to Democrat Thomas A. Luken by a 5,000-vote margin.

Gradison, in Washington to meet with Republican National Committee strategists, told The Cincinnati Enquirer Wednesday that he will recapture the votes which cost him the special election for former U.S. Rep. William Keating's seat.

He called the defeat a "referendum on the presidency."

"People who voted for Luken on March 5 are telling me they did it to send a message to the President, and that now that they have sent it, they will vote for me in November," he added.

Missing Police Cruiser Found

PRINCETON, W.Va. (AP)—A five-state search for a police cruiser carrying prisoners from Virginia to Ohio ended Wednesday night with the revelation that the driver apparently "took a wrong turn" somewhere in central West Virginia.

Mike Kosinar, a toll collector at the southern end of the West Virginia Turnpike here, said he recognized the car when it stopped at the gate from the police radio description. It was still headed in the wrong direction from its Ohio destination.

After a short explanation of the circumstances, the driver turned around and headed north again, Kosinar said. Princeton, near the Virginia border, is the southernmost point on the turnpike.

The Marlborough Township cruiser with two officers was transporting five prisoners from Roanoke, Va., to Alliance, Ohio. The car had been missing since early morning.

Kosinar said the cruiser pulled up to the gate and he was handed a ticket marked Charleston, some 88 miles to the north.

Kosinar said the driver apparently had mistakenly gone south on Interstate 77 near Charleston instead of going north. He then got on the West Virginia Turnpike and went back toward Virginia.

The entire episode meant an extra 180 miles of travel. There was also a report that the officers had car trouble, which may have accounted for the other lost time.

The toll collector said he told the driver it was a "tough break." The driver, he said, agreed.

Police agencies in Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, Ohio and the District of Columbia were on the alert for the car. Lexington Township Police Chief Paul B. Kelley said an air search was conducted over Pennsylvania and Washington, D. C.

The two officers in the car were Chief Russ Gattrell, 42, of Marlborough Township, and Sgt. Charles Smith, 34, of Lexington Township.

"They're all right and they still have their prisoners," Kelly said late Wednesday night.

The policemen left Roanoke Tuesday night following extradition of the prisoners. Kelly said four of the men were charged in a burglary in Marlborough Township and were wanted for questioning in a series of burglaries in the Alliance area. The fifth passenger was a juvenile.

Police would not give names or descriptions of the prisoners.

Welfare Assistance Available By State

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP)—State Welfare Director Charles Bates said Wednesday emergency assistance will be provided Ohioans who are temporarily left out of the federal Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program.

Bates said local welfare agencies will provide assistance for applicants for the new program until their first SSI checks arrive. He said he anticipates a problem because the SSI program has not been processing applications "in a timely and responsive fashion."

Crop Projections Planned By USDA

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department plans to issue on Friday new projections showing how 1974 crops of wheat, corn and other commodities are shaping up.

Officials said the report, by the department's Outlook and Situation Board, will be based on planting surveys taken among farmers March 1. The planting figures, including prospective acreages for corn and spring-type wheat, will be announced at 3 p.m. EDT.

The Nixon administration is banking heavily on bumper crop production this year, particularly for grains, as a dampener on spiraling consumer food prices. Larger output also is needed to rebuild grain stockpiles depleted by a two-year record drain by exports to foreign countries.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and other Nixon officials have said repeatedly that larger crop production is a better alternative than rationing exports or building huge government-owned food reserves.

The largest unknown factor, however, is whether farmers will have enough fuel, fertilizer and other supplies needed to plant, cultivate and harvest record 1974 crops. Department officials insist there will be enough of those items to produce the harvests although they admit some shortages are likely.

City Policemen Stage Slowdown In Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—City policemen are staging a work slowdown, apparently in reaction to what they consider harassment of officers. Officials said arrests this week have dropped 80 to 90 per cent.

The slowdown was not organized but was a deliberate action by individual officers because of the number of complaints of excessive force filed against policemen recently, according to Dewey Stokes, president of the Fraternal Order of Police.

It also followed city council agreement Monday to establish a board to investigate police brutality complaints with an eye to establishing a standing civilian review board.

Stokes said the complaints and council action are having a debilitating effect on police morale.

Jan. 1, USDA already has projected a record corn crop of nearly 6.7 billion bushels; and a record wheat harvest of almost 2.1 billion bushels. Soybean output, the experts say, will be down slightly as farmers turn to other crops.

Today's report reflects total U.S. planted acreages for major crops. In its January report, surveys were limited to key producing states. Corn planting surveys, for example were confined to 35 states but those produced more than 98 per cent of the nation's corn last year.

The January survey showed corn plantings this year will be up 10 per cent from 1973 in the 35 states sampled. Other gains shown in the January report were: durum wheat 47 per cent; other spring wheat 14 per cent; and sorghum one per cent. Cotton farmers indicated a 17 per cent increase.

Based on the January survey, soybean plantings were down 3.3 per cent; oats one per cent; barley 15 per cent, and rice two per cent.

Singing Osmonds Lead Double Life

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — To some people, the lives of the Osmonds—teen idols, night club stars and recording artists—might seem paradoxical.

On the one hand, they are devout Mormons, pledged to abstain from alcohol, tobacco, coffee, gambling and premarital sex.

On the other hand, they live in a world of rock music criticized by some Mormon leaders and they earn much of their wealth performing before the gambling crowds of Las Vegas.

But the 11-member family, which says it begins each day with a family prayer and gives 10 per cent of its income to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, sees no contradictions in lifestyle.

"Jesus ate with the publicans and the sinner," Olive Osmond, the mother, said during an interview at the family's Provo home between work engagements.

"People are people whether they're there to see a show or gamble in the slot machines," said her husband, George. "We go in the back door and out the back door."

Whatever the religious considerations, the Osmonds have hit it big. Almost continually one or more of the seven singing Osmond children has a record high on the charts. They play to standingroom crowds.

In 1972, the Osmonds produced 11 records, each hitting at least the $1 million mark in sales. No other singer or group—not the Beatles, not Elvis Presley—had so many gold records in one year.

The seven performing Osmonds are Alan, 24; Wayne, 22; Merrill, 20; Jay, 19; Donny, 16; Marie, 14, and Jimmy, 10. Two older children in the family, Virl and Tom, are deaf and work on "Osbro"—a name given some family productions.

Alan, Wayne, Merrill and Jay were the original Osmond Brothers, but Donny later joined them. Jimmy solos and sometimes performs novelty acts with the group, while Marie is getting into the country and western field with her recent top-of-the-charts "Paper Roses."

Donny, who appears monthly on the covers of fan magazines aimed at teenage girls, was not allowed to date until his 16th birthday last December, the family says.

The covers of 16, Fave, Tiger Beat and Teen Life scream: "Donny Tells All!," "Donny's Secret Love Talk," "His Hidden Passions," and ask, "Are You His Future Wife?"

When he appears in public he sometimes is mobbed by girls who want to touch him, kiss him, get his autograph, or just stare.

What causes the hysteria over Donny?

Gloria Stavers, editor of 16 magazine, says, "A girl at the age of 11 or 12 needs a safe, distant love object for her budding and rather intense awakening to feelings of love for the opposite sex."

Donny has his own explanation.

"Around my age, they (girls) want to cry and scream and stuff like that," he says. "And songs that I record they can relate to very well. 'Puppy Love'—they're true songs; puppy love actually goes on."

He is not bothered by the fan magazines.

"It's fun to go through them once in awhile," he says. "They get off some stories that could become dangerous. But you have to admit they do help us and they helped us become more popular."

The progress of the family from obscurity in Utah to bright lights in Las Vegas can be measured step by step.

They started with barbershop harmonies at their church-sponsored family home evenings, then went from civic club dates to Disneyland, to the Andy Williams television show for nine seasons and finally to Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas. They recently signed a four-year contract with the Tropicana in Las Vegas.

"We always felt that our mission was to the outside world," said George Osmond, 56, a former insurance and real estate broker.

After singing, the brothers learned to dance, then play instruments.

"Traveling the fair circuit, we met a lot of experienced pros," said the father. "In between shows we would pick their brains... juggling, tumbling, circus acts, unicycle—all of this we could learn from these pros, and everything we learned, we used."

A tutor was hired to teach the traveling kids, and out of that came an Osmond company selling educational programs on cassette tapes. The most recent teacher, Mary Carlson, a former Brigham Young University cheerleader, is now Mrs. Merrill Osmond.

Despite the fortune they've made, acclaim for Osmond music is not universal. One writer described it as "simple, repetitive, with naive lyrics, easy to remember, and mercifully, easy to forget."

In fact, although the Osmonds have sold millions of albums and singles, many people outside the TOP 40 teen set have never heard of them.

The Osmonds attribute to their family closeness any success they have in maintaining a wholesome environment amid the glitter and temptations of the entertainment world.

When in Utah the Osmonds live in a 21-room converted office building with a professional studio. It is one of 13 buildings in Provo's Riviera apartment complex, which they share with 825 unmarried students at Mormon-operated Brigham Young University who have contracted not to smoke, drink or engage in premarital sex.

"It's rough to be in the business and not start to become part of it," says Alan. "If you're careful, you can be. And that's why working together as a family has helped us to maintain our values and our goals."

Pay Cutoff Plan Falters In Ohio Assembly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An attempt to exclude an estimated 35,000 non-teaching school employees from unemployment pay during summer months appears to be faltering in the legislature.

The Senate's majority Republicans picked up four Democratic votes Wednesday and sent the bill to the House 21-9, but lost by a single vote an emergency clause that would have headed off initial payments this summer. It takes 22, or two-thirds, for an emergency clause in the Senate. Non-emergency bills require 90 days to become law.

Labor's big guns, mainly the Ohio AFL-CIO, say they have the support among the 58-41 Democratic House majority to stop the bill. It's demise would enable teachers aides, janitors, cooks, and others to draw benefits averaging $29 a week this summer for the first time.

Non-teaching employees at the universities were voted eligible in 1971, and the law was expanded by the legislature in 1973 to include primary and secondary school employees.

The bill, by Sen. Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, also would take away newly-voted coverage for employees of county boards of mental retardation which run school programs that coincide with other public schools.

Maloney offered the bill, he said, because the legislature failed last year to appropriate funds to cover the costs which he said may run as high as $15 million a year. He also questioned the eligibility of workers who take on jobs of less than 12 months a year knowing "full well" their employment is not permanent.

Sen. Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, led the floor fight against the bill on grounds that taking away the benefits voted last year would be "discriminatory, and going back on our word." It would be discrimination, he said, since the legislature "saw fit to give the benefits to higher education employees two years ago."

Democrats who supported both the emergency clause and the bill were Sens. Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, Gene Slagle, D-26 Galion; David L. Headley, D-28 Barberton, and Robert T. Secrest, D-20 Cambridge. Secrest said he did so because the legislature should not have mandated coverage without providing the funds.

In other action, the Senate added its approval 30-0 to a House bill that permits an exchange of land in Scioto County between the Ohio Power Co. and the Lucasville Correctional Institution.

Among a half dozen new bills introduced in the Senate were two that permit county commissioners to buy liability insurance for sheriffs and deputies, and require that roll bars and re-enforced roofs be installed on certain vehicles used by law enforcement agencies.

Registration Begins At OU-C

Registration for spring quarter 1974 classes at Ohio University-Chillicothe Campus will commence on March 15. Classes are scheduled to begin on March 25, and prospective students should register prior to this date. Students may register at the Office of Admissions and Registration in Bennett Hall from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

For further information concerning undergraduate credit courses, please contact the Office of Admissions and Registration at 614-775-9500. Information concerning non-credit Continuing Education courses and Graduate credit courses is available through the Office of Continuing Education. A schedule of classes will be mailed upon request.

Certificates in First Aid were earned by 165 persons during the past year in 18 classes taught by 10 volunteer instructors of Pickaway County Red Cross.

After lengthy debate, the House voted mostly along party lines, 58-32, and sent to the Senate a bill that would allow day care subsidies for babysitting to persons other than those in day care centers.

Republican opponents pointed out that language in the measure, allowing payments to anyone other than parents, would make it possible for grandmothers or grandfathers to receive them at the rate of $3 a day for each of up to four children.

Among those speaking against the measure was Rep. Thomas N. Kindness, R-58 Hamilton, who said "it would be taking public money to pay Grandma to take care of the grandchildren. I'm not sure it's the state's burden."

The chief sponsor, Rep. C. J. McLin Jr., D-36 Dayton, said the measure would allow 500 to 700 women who do not have access to day care facilities "to get out of the welfare cycle and find a job." His figures came from a Welfare Department estimate, he said.

The House, in other action, passed and sent to Gov. John J. Gilligan for signing into law a bill aimed at bringing Ohio's traffic control signals into line with federal law.

It would permit, among other things, the use of a yellow arrow indicator on traffic lights, a signal not currently recognized in Ohio.

The House refused to concur, by a 44-44 vote, in Senate amendments to a bill allowing urban townships to establish civil service commissions for police and firemen. The measure apparently is headed for a joint conference committee.

Believe Man Slain With Own Revolver

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A cancer-stricken coin collector found dead Tuesday may have been fatally pistol-whipped with his own revolver, police said Wednesday.

Robert C. Spraul, 63, of suburban Price Hill was apparently robbed of an estimated $7,000-$12,500 in old coins and silver dollars.

The victim had recently advertized his collection for sale in a Cincinnati newspaper.

Marathon Strike Talks Held In San Francisco Walkout

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Marathon talks continued today in an effort to end an eight-day strike of city employees that has paralyzed public transit.

There were reports that the strikers might try to halt Southern Pacific commuter trains from San Francisco peninsula from entering the city and to close the port to sea traffic.

A spokesman for the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union said its members would not cross picket lines on city piers.

"We're going all night through, all the way through," Mayor Joseph L. Alioto said as negotiators for the city and the striking Service Employees International Union started the night bargaining session.

Alioto said the pay hike gap in bargaining had been narrowed to $85 a month demanded by the SEIU and $65 offered by the city's Board of Supervisors. The union wants $16 million a year in pay raises and a dental health plan. The striking workers earn an average of $850 a month in jobs ranging from $581 to $1,500.

There were estimates that the strike is causing an economic loss of $20 million a day.

In another labor dispute, San

Francisco's 130 schools have been operating on a half-day schedule because of a strike of 2,000 members of the San Francisco Federation of Teachers.

The teachers walked out last Friday to back demands for a 15 per cent pay increase during the 1974-1975 academic year.

Some school workers also are members of the striking city workers union, and school bus drivers are honoring its picket lines.

The some 10,000 clerks, janitors, hospital workers, social workers and other civil service staff represented by the SEIU rejected on Wednesday the city's latest pay package. Terms were not disclosed.

Cincy School Problems Continue

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Opposition to a school board plan calling for mandatory faculty transfers on a racial basis continues to mount with two teachers groups considering a merger and legal action.

The Cincinnati Teachers Association (CTA) today was to discuss possible merger with its former rival, the Cincinnati Federation of Teachers (CFT).

CTA, the official bargaining agent with the board of education, has 2,400 members and CFT, 552.

CFT has issued an ultimatum to the school to change its teacher transfer plan or face mass sick-ins.

The two groups received support from a coalition of teachers and black civil rights groups Wednesday.

The Rev. Otis Moss, chairman of the People United to Save Humanity (PUSH), urged the teachers to consider filing a suit against the plan.

Rev. Moss attacked the new, conservative board of education for failing to implement a Dec. 10, 1973, integration policy approved by the outgoing liberal board.

The CFT reported Wednesday it is going ahead with plans to file suit against the teacher transfer plan Friday.

Rev. Moss said PUSH has a contingency plan, but declined to disclose it. The group is demanding total integration of faculty and students.

Six schools hit by faculty absenteeism Tuesday returned to normal Wednesday after School Superintendent Donald Waldrip issued a memo ordering doctor's proof of sickness or no pay.

That order was attacked by CTA President Harriet Russell. She said it violates terms of the teachers contracts.

Firm To Plan Ohio Lottery

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A New Jersey consulting firm has been contracted to plan the Ohio lottery, a Lottery Commission spokesman said Wednesday.

Mathematica of Princeton, N.J., was one of the first consultants to express interest in setting up the lottery, the spokesman said.

Lottery Commission Chairman David Leahy said the contract is for about $250,000, and the work should take four or five months.

A high pressure ridge will move eastward across Ohio today bringing sunny weather conditions but with a chance of showers Thursday night.

Under clear skies Wednesday night, temperatures were in the upper teens and low 20s. The coldest spots late Wednesday were in Toledo, Mansfield and Youngstown with 17 degrees. Readings this afternoon are expected to range from the mid 30s near Lake Erie to the mid 40s in southern Ohio.

Winds today will be lighter than Wednesday, so that the chill factor will not be so strong. Following the high pressure ridge, a little warmer weather is forecast for Friday ahead of a low pressure developing early Thursday near the Dakotas. It is that low moving eastward that could bring some showers to the state Thursday night.

Temperatures tonight are expected to drop to the low 30s or 20s, and rise into the 40s or low 50s Friday afternoon under mostly cloudy skies.

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

Yesterday's books of kings and queens have given way to tales of magic and hauntings. New paperbacks for children highlight the trend. Funny and slightly shivery, these stories stretch the imagination. The shadows of everyone who has visited Emily's garden have a life of their own in "The Shades" by Betty Brock. When the laughing, carefree shadow people meet a live boy who has discovered their secret world, they share many delightful adventures.

Irrepressible Alison in "The Active Enzyme Lemon-Freshened Junior High School Witch" is led to believe she's a witch. Light-hearted attempts at creating potions, writing incantations and casting spells arm her against warring witches. Humorous, rather than sinister, the author gives Alison a few months to take it seriously and then she's off on another kick.

From flying witches to fly balls, we have "The Horse That Played Center Field" by Hal Higdon. When a losing

L-O-F To Shut Down Work At 2 Plants

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Libbey-Owens-Ford Co. announced Wednesday it will shut down glass laminating and tempering operations and lay off 1,130 workers at its East Toledo and Rossford plants the weeks of March 25 and April 15.

Company spokesmen said the layoffs are a result of reduced automotive glass demand resulting from the slowdown in auto production.

Coach has tried everything he jokingly gambles on a horse whose catching ability can't be worse than his human counterparts. The faithful formula of animal outdoing man is used here to provide laughter for boys or girls.

An ALA Notable book that's fun is "Freaky Friday" by Mary Rodgers. Annabel wakes up one morning to find herself in her mother's body. The ludicrous situations that develop as she meets her mother's friends and her own boyfriends are wildly entertaining.

Strange footprints, secret compartments and ghosts are combined in Peggy Parish's "Haunted House." Always popular with beginning mystery fans, the author has created a plot to mystify, but not to frighten.

And a paperback has arrived for all the fans of Laura Ingalls Wilders' series of the little house. This is her final chapter on prairie life in the 1880's.

The tale of a boy who runs away from home to seek his fortune in the Gold Rush days, "By the Great Horned Spoon" by Sid Fleischman is in paperback. A jolly story for adventure loving boys, it is an old fashioned yarn and has plenty of action.

Sensitive young teens may like to try "Hey, Dummy" by Kin Platt. All the conflicts between people who fear "dummies" and those who understand mental retardation are personalized. Twelve year old Neil is unafraid to take action as he becomes aware of the tragedy.

Many copies of teen oriented paperbacks are now available in the library, so give the paperbacks another look.

Divorce Ends Film Marriage

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The marriage of actor Ryan O'Neal and actress Leigh Taylor-Young, whose romance flowered when they were costars on television's "Peyton Place," has ended in divorce.

Miss Taylor-Young, 29, had sought the divorce granted Wednesday on grounds of irreconcilable differences with O'Neal, 32, star of "Love Story" and several other motion pictures.

Superior Court Judge Pearce Young temporarily granted a motion by Miss Taylor-Young's attorney that court files, including terms of the property settlement, be sealed. Young asked for documents supporting the request.

NCAA Heavyweights Clash

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The heavyweights come out fighting tonight in Round Two of the NCAA basketball playoffs.

Sixteen of the nation's best college teams, including that old smoothie UCLA, will battle toe-to-toe in arenas across the country.

UCLA, nine-time winner of the national championship, is favored to score a knockout over Dayton's muscled independents in one of the Far West regional games.

In the other one at Tucson, Ariz., it's Western Athletic Conference winner New Mexico State vs. San Francisco, king of the West Coast Athletic Conference.

Kansas, the Big Eight champion,

meets independent toughie Creighton, while Missouri Valley Conference champ Louisville takes on Oral Roberts, another nonleague team with punch, in the Midwest in Tulsa, Okla. Okla.

In the Mideast at Tuscaloosa, Ala., independent Notre Dame faces Michigan, the Big Ten winner, and independent Marquette challenges Vanderbilt, winner of the Southeastern Conference.

The East regionals at Raleigh, N. C., matches independent Pitt against Southern Conference champion Furman and independent Providence with North Carolina State, the Atlantic Coast Conference champion.

While many of the other teams played first-round games last

Saturday, UCLA and North Carolina State were busy settling their own conference races. The Pac-8 and ACC traditionally draw first-round byes in the playoffs.

Michigan and Indiana tied for the Big Ten title at the end of the regular season Saturday and the Wolverines won an NCAA berth by beating the Hoosiers in a playoff game Monday night.

Dayton will be an interesting test for UCLA, a team that obviously is not the superteam of past years. The third-ranked Bruins have been beaten three times this season, the first time that's happened in eight years.

The Flyers beat second-ranked Notre Dame by 15 points earlier this season. The Fighting Irish stopped

UCLA's fabulous 88-game winning streak last January.

"We will have the same respect for Dayton that we had for Southern Cal," said UCLA Coach John Wooden, referring to the Bruins' 82-52 conference-clincher over the Trojans.

Dayton Coach Don Donohoe goes into this sudden-death game with plans for the powerful Bruins.

"We'd like to have a say in the tempo of the game," said Donohoe. "We don't want to go in with one extreme, like to hold the ball, but by the same token, we don't want to go like it's the 100 meters in the Olympics, either."

The second game of the Far West regional features a battle of teams with muscle and inside power.

"We hope we don't have to stand toe-to-toe with them," said New Mexico Coach Norm Ellenberger. "If it turns into a boxing match, we'll have to do some work on the weights right away."

San Francisco's Bob Gaillard: "We feel we play aggressive defense. But we're not as aggressive as New Mexico."

Kansas, whose Big Eight Conference also drew a first-round bye, takes on a tough Creighton bunch that beat highly-regarded Marquette, among others, during the regular season. Oral Roberts, a high-powered scoring machine, will be playing on its home court against Louisville.

Notre Dame is favored against Michigan, but Fighting Irish Coach Dick Phelps isn't impressed by the favorite's role.

"Just forget rankings and records," said Phelps. "Any of the 16 teams in the regionals can win it all. They all belong there."

Vanderbilt's Roy Skinner fears Marquette's killer instinct.

"They are very smart, patient and disciplined," he says. "If they get you down, they'll run you into the ground."

North Carolina State's Norm Sloan thinks his top-ranked team is at its height and should give Providence some trouble.

"We are at our greatest peak," said Sloan. "Our goal right now is to beat Providence and win the Eastern regional."

"We'll have to play near-perfect basketball to beat North Carolina State," countered Providence Coach Dave Gavitt.

Furman gained a second-round berth with an upset of South Carolina last Saturday. Pittsburgh won over St. Joseph's, Pa., the Middle Atlantic Conference (University Division) champion.

TONIGHT'S GAMES

The Detroit Tigers end their spring exhibition baseball schedule with night games in the Houston Astrodome the first three nights in April.

All-Americans Named

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Walton and David Thompson, the premier players on two of America's premier teams, were named today to the Associated Press All-America basketball team for 1974.

Walton, UCLA's golden center, and the graceful Thompson from North Carolina State scored big in the voting by sports writers and broadcasters from around the country.

Joining Walton and Thompson on the AP's glamour team are UCLA's Keith Wilkes, John Shumate of Notre Dame and Providence's Marvin Barnes.

Walton, the most publicized collegian since the days of Lew Alcindor, made the star-studded team for the third straight year. Thompson, often termed the best forward in the country and a sure-fire professional star, was voted on the first team for the second straight season, his junior year.

Wilkes, one of the smartest and smoothest forwards in the country, was on The AP's Second Team last season. Barnes, the nation's leading rebounder with almost 19 a game this year, was an Honorable Mention last year. This is a first time for Shumate, the big wheel in Notre Dame's high-powered offense.

Walton and Thompson, darlings of the professional scouts, were also darlings of the voters. With Walton polling the most votes, the two front-court players scored by a wide margin over Shumate, the third best vote-getter. Wilkes outscored Barnes by an eyelash.

Walton, sometimes as mystifying as he is celebrated, was a tower of strength for the powerful Bruins this year.

Despite a gimpy knee, UCLA's most famous cripple helped the Bruins run their spectacular winning streak to 88 games halfway through the season. Even when losing to Notre Dame in the streakbreaker, he played with injury — and played well.

Thompson, the only non-senior on the first team, was played to a standstill by Wilkes earlier in the season when UCLA beat North Carolina State in their "game of the year." But the flashy forward came back from that performance with All-America class.

The high-leaping Thompson, easily the best player in the Atlantic Coast Conference, brought the "Pack" back from that disastrous showing against UCLA to the top of the college basketball world.

Wilkes, termed "Silk" for his poetic grace, breathed fresh life into UCLA after the Bruins' inexplicable, two-game losing streak at Oregon and Oregon State. Shumate, a muscular center with a great outside shot, led Notre Dame's resurgence this season. And Barnes, a workhorse under the basket, was the primary reason for Providence's berth in the NCAA playoffs.

The AP's Second Team consists of Maryland's John Lucas; Larry Fogle of Canisius; North Carolina's Bobby Jones; Len Elmore of Maryland, and Billy Knight of Pitt.

The third team: Dennis DuVal of Syracuse; Tom McMillen of Maryland; Hawaii's Tom Henderson; North Carolina State's Tom Burleson and Campy Russell of Michigan.

Reds Defeat White Sox In 3-1 Game

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — It wasn't a typical Cincinnati victory. The Reds, noted for their booming bats, managed only two hits, both by a couple guys who needed crutches to walk not too long ago.

But the Reds won their fourth game in five exhibition baseball outings Wednesday 3-1 over the Chicago White Sox.

Despite being out-hit 10-2, Cincinnati edged the White Sox on a solo home run by shortstop Dave Concepcion, a sacrifice fly by newcomer Merv Rettenmund and a bunt by pitcher Mike McQueen.

Concepcion is recovering from a broken ankle and McQueen, picked up in the winter draft, spent two months in a hospital with injuries received in an auto accident.

Jack Billingham, a 19-game winner last year, became the first Reds' pitcher to go five innings this spring. He allowed five hits and a run to pick up the victory.

John Lamb was the loser, victimized by hitting Dan Driessen with a pitch and advancing the Cincinnati third baseman to second on an errant pickoff throw. An infielder moved Driessen to third and Rettenmund made it 2-1 with a long fly out.

The Reds host the Minnesota Twins today.

CCA Tournament Gets Under Way

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Both cheered and chastised, the first Collegiate Commissioners Association basketball tourney gets under way tonight at the cavernous, 19,000-seat Arena with two games.

Whereas the coach of 10th-ranked Indiana called the post-season test "A waste of time," the director of Southern Cal's 15th-ranked forces is an unabashed fan.

"The tournament is for runners-up," Indiana's 34-year-old Bobby Knight said after his Hoosiers fell to 12th-ranked Michigan in the Big Ten conference playoffs this week.

Lakers Top Philadelphia

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Little Gail Goodrich sat slumped in the Los Angeles locker room after carrying the weight of the Laker offense for the second night in a row.

At 6-foot-1 and 175 pounds, Goodrich has not only been the highest scoring Laker, he's also the most durable.

"Gail Goodrich is just a great offensive player," said Los Angeles Coach Bill Sharman after the Lakers beat the Philadelphia 76ers 121-100 in the National Basketball Association Wednesday night. "And he's the only starter who has been in every game this year."

Goodrich scored 34 points Tuesday night to rally the Lakers to a victory over the Knicks, then popped in 38 points 24 hours later to guide Los Angeles to its 11th victory in its last 13 games.

Elsewhere in the NBA, the Boston Celtics downed the Phoenix Suns 104-97 and the Houston Rockets dumped the Capital Bullets 117-93.

ABA scores: Indiana 100, Kentucky 96; San Antonio 111, Denver 108, overtime; New York 97, Utah 76, San Diego 119, Virginia 103.

Clemson freshman Wayne Rollins blocked 52 shots in his first 10 games with the varsity basketball team this season.

The Detroit Tigers will play exhibition games against eight National League teams this spring.

Top-Ranked Prep Teams Ousted

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two top-ranked Class AAA teams were knocked out of contention in high school regional basketball tournament action Wednesday night.

Second-ranked and previously unbeaten Kettering Alter fell to defending champion Cincinnati Elder 58-48, and third-ranked Springfield North was ousted by seven-time titlist Middletown 79-61.

Elder and Middletown, both with 20-3 records, advanced to the regional championship game in Dayton Saturday.

In other tournament action Wednesday night, Boardman downed Cleveland East Tech 93-82 in the Canton Class AAA regional and Mount Blanchard Riverdale edged Lincolnview in a Class A semifinal at Bowling Green.

Cincinnati Elder, ranked 16th in the final Associated Press poll, snapped a 14-14 tie by scoring eight straight points early in the second quarter and stayed ahead the rest of the way.

Kettering Alter, playing without its leading scorer, Joe Siggins, who has a sprained ankle, never got closer than eight points again.

Bill Earley paced Elder with 21 points. Kettering, bowing out with a 22-1 mark, got 18 points from Bob Schaeffer, who filled in for Siggins.

Middletown, ninth in the AP ratings, went on eight-point scoring sprees three times in the third period to break open a previously close game.

Damon Graham of Middletown and Randy Ayers of Springfield North shared scoring honors with 20 points apiece.

It was Springfield North's first loss in 24 games.

Although the Middies are bidding for their eighth state championship, they haven't won the title since 1957.

Boardman came off a 40-39 halftime deficit to outscore East Tech 29-11 in the third period and blow the game open. Senior guard Don Filip led the victors with 28 points.

East Tech, three-time state titlist, finished with a 15-7 record.

Boardman (22-1) now goes to the regional championship game against the winner of tonight's Canton McKinley-Akron Kenmore game.

At Bowling Green, Riverdale got hot in the second period, outscoring Lincolnview 25-12 to overcome a five-point deficit, and never trailed again.

Former LE Coach Takes Mt. Vernon To Regionals

Mt. Vernon High School, coached by former Logan Elm High School cage mentor Keith Merrin, plays Celina in the state class AAA regional tournament at Ohio State Fairgrounds Coliseum 9 p.m. Friday.

It is the first time in over 50 years Mt. Vernon has played in the regionals. The Yellow Jackets played in the state tournament some 52 years ago when it was an invitational event.

Merrin is no stranger to regional tournament play, having twice taken Logan Elm squads to regional class A action at Athens.

A graduate of Mt. Vernon High School and Capital University, Merrin returned to his alma mater as head basketball coach after a successful career beginning at Logan Elm and brief stay in Delaware Hayes High School as head coach of the Pacers cage team.

Mt. Vernon this year was co-champion of the Ohio Capital Conference.

Dayton Flyers Face UCLA

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Mike Sylvester had such a bad sophomore basketball season, the University of Dayton star considered switching to professional baseball.

Fortunately for the Flyers, the 6-foot-5 senior from Cincinnati stuck with college basketball.

Cincy Reds After Big Prize--Again

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Heralded as one of baseball's best teams, but hounded by four years of frustration, the Cincinnati Reds try, try again in 1974.

"Win it all" was the trumpeting call from combative field leader Pete Rose, the National League's Most Valuable Player last season.

The Reds' 99 victories led the majors in 1973 but The Big Red Machine ran into another postseason roadblock, losing to the New York Mets in the playoffs.

Determined to shed the disappointments of two World Series setbacks, the collapse of 1971 and last year's abbreviated bid, President Bob Howsam staged a minor winter overhaul.

He traded off disgruntled outfielder Bobby Tolan for righthander Clay Kirby, the San Diego Padres' winningest pitcher, and peddled starter Ross Grimsley to the Baltimore Orioles for seasoned veteran outfielder Merv Rettenmund.

The result, Howsam hopes, was reinforcement against the vulnerability of past shortseries failures.

And most agree the Reds loom again as the Western Division power.

But there are question marks. Is catcher Johnny Bench ready to bounce back after an off-year? Can Clay Carroll regain his relief pitching magic? Is Gary Nolan's career finished at age 25?

Manager George "Sparky" Anderson echoes renewed optimism. "I'm not afraid to say it. We should win everything this year."

Emerging as chief candidates to lead a breakthrough assault in 1974 are pitchers Jack Billingham and Don Gullett, who combined for 37 victories last year.

Billingham, 19-10, became a stopper after a so-so 44-44 career record and Gullett came on with a flurry, winning nine straight down the stretch.

The experience of Rose, Bench, slick-fielding second baseman Joe Morgan and slugging first baseman Tony Perez lends maturity. The sometimes-sputtering pitching staff seems stabilized with the acquisition of ex-Adres' Fred Norman and Kirby. Anderson's chief concern lies with youngsters Dan Driessen and Ken Griffey, who responded to pennant pressures with amazing poise. They will need to deliver the depth.

Nolan's arm continues to plague him with pain. The outlook is dim and more surgery is likely. But his loss for a second straight season could be offset by Roger Nelson's healed arm.

Shortstop Dave Concepcion, who carried the Reds during a first-half slump, stroked a runcoring single in his spring debut. That could signal he is ready to take up where he left off before breaking an ankle at mid-season.

Barring an injury, Rose appears headed for a 10th consecutive .300 season. The 32-year-old Reds' captain anchors left field and largely accounts for the winning spirit with his stirring hustle.

Bench's output declined, but considering he drove in 100 runs again after major surgery there's reason to believe he's ready for another big year. He had 25 homers in 1973.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The Cleveland Indians led the American League in home runs last season, but their initiative stopped right there.

The Tribe was the East Division's cellar-dweller when the final bell rang and finished the season with a baseball club that made one wonder how it even did that well.

In the later part of the season Manager Ken Aspromonte fined outfielder George Hendrick because he didn't charge a ground ball, there was an altercation between several coaches and a member of the press and a winning streak was three games.

Except for two new pitchers, the squad is the same as last year and it is doubtful that the youngsters on the team will improve enough to bring the club out of the basement.

The Indians are placing a lot of their hopes in an entirely new coaching staff and Aspromonte began the spring training season issuing severe warnings to everyone that they better be in shape and toe the line.

The new coaches are Tony Pacheco and Clay Bryant, who are up from minor league posts, and Larry Doby, a former Indian star. Doby comes to the Tribe from a coaching job with the Montreal Expos.

Doby and Pacheco will handle the general coaching duties and Bryant will work with the pitching staff.

The Indians pitching staff has one strong pitcher and that's 1972 Cy Young Award winner Gaylord Perry. However, his 1973 performance (19-19), although the winningest on the club, was below his previous year's 24-16.

Behind Perry there are Dick Tidrow (14-16), Milt Wilcox (8-10), Tom Timmerman (9-8), Dick Bosman (2-5) and Brent Strom (2-10). Other returning pitchers include Mike Kekich, Tom Hilgendorf, Ray Lamb and Ken Sanders.

Cecil Upshaw, picked up in a trade with the Houston Astros, will be used to boost the Indians' bullpen, which except for Sanders, needs help.

The Pittsburgh Pirates sent Bob Johnson to the Indians and the Tribe will be looking at him as a starter and a reliever.

The Indians' infield will remain the same, although Aspromonte is giving John Lowenstein, an outfielder-infielder, a closer look at second base.

Third baseman Buddy Bell, who has already been saddled with the unofficial title of team captain, is one of the Indians' brightest spots. Bell played in the All-Star game last year and turned in a .268 batting average, scoring 86 runs and driving in 59.

Covering the left side of the infield with Bell is shortstop Frank Duffy. Second baseman Jack Brohamer batted .220 last year and that's the reason for Aspromonte's interest in Lowenstein.

In 305 trips to the plate, Lowenstein batted .292, drove in 76 runs and scored

78. First baseman Chris Chambliss has no competition. Chambliss batted .273 last season.

The outfield will again be covered by Oscar Gamble, Hendrick, Rusty Torres, Charlie Spikes and Walt Williams, with Ron Lolich filling in now and then.

Michigan State's 10-7 football victory over Purdue in 1973 made it four in a row for the Spartans over the Boilermakers.

Nixon Committee To Aid Defendants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trustees of President Nixon's leftover campaign funds have decided to pay legal fees and expenses for former officials acquitted of criminal charges and possibly for those found guilty of misdemeanors.

One of the largest beneficiaries of the decision could be one of the trustees — former Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans, who is on trial in New York on federal charges of criminal conspiracy, perjury and obstruction of justice.

Stans, who reportedly has spent more than $100,000 out of his own pocket for legal fees, participated in the trustees' decision, according to one of the other trustees.

Although the decision expands a previous policy of the Nixon campaign organization, both of Stans' co-trustees said in interviews they were unaware it was a change.

Stans was finance director of the Nixon campaign. He is on trial along

Film 'Con' Tried Out By Trio

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—A 9-year-old boy and two teen-agers were convicted Wednesday after being caught at a confidence game popularized by the movie "Paper Moon."

The three Middletown juveniles were fined $25 and court costs on charges of defrauding two merchants and attempting to trick a supermarket checkout clerk.

According to police, a 17-year-old girl would enter a store and make a purchase with a $20 bill. The 9-year-old boy soon followed, using a $5 bill to buy several items. Then he would complain to the clerk that he paid with a $20 and demand change.

When the clerk disagreed, the boy would convincingly explain the $20 was a gift from his uncle and had his name and "Happy Birthday" written on it. A check of the bill would show what the youngster insisted. Change would be given "with an apology," police said.

A 16-year-old boy was also involved, according to police.

The trio said the idea came from the book "Addie Pray," which was made into the movie "Paper Moon."

Police said the three were ordered to make restitution and were placed on probation.

Sardine Sandwich Getting Squeezed

NEW YORK (AP) — The sardine sandwich may become a thing of the past, says Audubon magazine, if overfishing persists.

Britain's east coast sardine fishery is dead already and schools of fish off Maine, Canada and California are dwindling. There are only 17 sardine canneries in Maine now compared to 51 in 1950.

One remedy, says the magazine, would be to close spawning areas, since it is at spawning time that the fish congregate in largest numbers, but no government seems much interested.

The term sardine is applied to both pilchards and sea herrings.

The Circleville Herald, Thursday March 14, 1974 15 Nesting Birds Big Problem On North Side Of Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— More than 100,000 birds nesting in a North Side area of Columbus may pose a serious health hazard to residents, officials said Wednesday.

Ron Ogden, assistant state superintendent for the U.S. Wildlife Service, said the birds are migrating blackbirds, purple grackles, cowbirds, starlings and red-winged blackbirds. They have been roosting in a seven acre wooded area surrounded by homes for several weeks, he said.

Ogden said the health hazard lies in the bird droppings. Spores from the droppings, when inhaled, cause fungus diseases that attack the lungs, he said.

Although there is little immediate danger, Ogden explained, if dry weather continues the situation could become dangerous.

And unless something is done to chase them away, the birds will remain in the area until mid-April, he said.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has been denied permits to chase the birds away, Ogden said.

The Columbus police license bureau, which issues the permits, said they were denied because it would only chase the birds out of this area and into another. The bureau said so far it has received only telephone requests for the permits.

The permits would allow the agency to disturb the peace by broadcasting a loud simulated blackbird distress call. The service also would be allowed to shoot firecrackers in the air to frighten the birds, Ogden said.

Ogden said he was planning to meet with city and state health officials to get the fowled-up area declared a health hazard.

If a health hazard is declared, the service would probably get permission quickly to clear out the birds, Ogden said.

Producers Name Management Staff

Gerald L. Hiller, general manager of Producers Livestock Association has announced the appointment of Harold Sherman as manager of Producers stockyards at Circleville.

In the same announcement, Joe Streitenberger was hired as hog salesman for the market and Phyllis Walters was named office manager.

Howard Rainier, director of operations for PLA will remain at the market for several weeks during the transitional period, in a supervisory position, to help accomplish the management changeover.

Harold Sherman, who is an OSU graduate in Animal Science, can boast of broad experience in the livestock business from the production end of the live animal right on through the retail sale of the finished product.

Campaign Finance Bill Clears Panel

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An apparently bi-partisan, but watered down campaign financing bill cleared an Ohio House committee shortly before midnight Wednesday after nearly six months of political bickering.

The vote was 15-2.

Agreement by the House State Government Committee on the Senate-approved measure culminated efforts that began last October at an abortive special session on campaign financing.

A spokesman for Gov. John J. Gilligan's office indicated both parties now are ready to give the legislation final approval.

"I don't think it will have to go to a conference committee," said William Chavanne, Gilligan's deputy assistant for legislative affairs.

Although the bill does make substantial changes in present law, it leaves untouched the major problem of putting limits on political contributions by labor groups and big money interests.

Soviets Earn Big Windfall In Gold Sales

LONDON (AP) — The Russians earned more than $800 million selling gold abroad in 1973 and most of the money wound up in the United States, says a leading London gold dealer.

Samuel Montagu and Co. said in their annual bullion review today that the Soviet government sold about 280 tons of gold last year, the highest volume they have marketed since 1965.

A spokesman at Montagu said most of this gold was sold during the first nine months of the year to help pay for American wheat.

He added that the Russians got an average price of $90 an ounce, making their sale of 280 tons worth $824 million.

Montagu said Moscow actually sold more gold abroad in 1965, a total of 311 tons. But then the price was only $35 an ounce, and the Russians realized $348 million for the year, less than half of what they got in last year's record take.

The figures are estimates, but Montagu is believed to know as much about Soviet gold dealings as anyone outside the Kremlin. The firm, one of London's biggest bullion dealers, has handled Russian gold sales in the West for many years.

CHEVROLET'S LONG-HELD REPUTATION FOR VALUE AND ECONOMY MEANS ALL THE MORE TODAY.

20 small cars from Chevrolet, 17 of them priced under $3,000.

5 VEGAS, FROM $2380*

The lowest priced 4-cylinder car made in America.

That would be the Vega Notchback Coupe. And Vega has more than just its low price going for it. Results of recent Chevrolet fuel economy tests show an average of 29.8 miles per gallon for Vega at a steady speed of 55 miles per hour, the maximum federal speed. In simulated suburban city driving (average speed 24 mph with 1.6 stops per mile), Vega averaged 26.5 mpg. Engineers conducted the tests at our Proving Ground. Cars were Vega Hatchbacks equipped with standard engine and transmission and popular options. In all tests, cars carried the weight of two passengers. Of course the mileage you'll get depends on how and where you drive.

Vega Notchback Coupe

12 NOVAS, FROM $2647*

2-door, 3-door, and Chevy's lowest priced 4-door.

Nova was a sensible car when it was first introduced, and it's even more sensible today. Low priced, uncomplicated, solid—with the room you want plus the economy you need. Choice of thrifty 6-cylinder engine or efficient V8, a dozen different models in all. Need lots of load space? Look into the Nova Hatchback, with the big back door and the six-foot floor.

Nova 6 Coupe

3 CAMAROS, FROM $2890*

You're looking at the lowest priced car in its class.

True. At $2890, the 6-cylinder Camaro Sport Coupe is the lowest priced car in its class, and it's a mighty good-looking, good-driving car for the money. Sensibly sporty, with plenty of traditional Chevrolet value built in. Camaro is also available in V8 models, including the luxurious Type LT which has, among other things, an especially nice interior.

Hank Aaron Starts Pounding Out Homers

By FRANK BROWN

AP Sports Writer

Spring training appears to be progressing normally for Henry Aaron. He hit a home run in his second at-bat of the exhibition baseball season.

Aaron struck out in his only appearance against the New York Yankees Tuesday, but powered a James Rodney Richard pitch over the left field wall for two runs in the first inning of Atlanta's 9-8 victory over the Houston Astros Wednesday.

Just one regular-season homer short of the year's best publicized record, Aaron also had a single in two other trips to the plate Wednesday before leaving in the fifth inning. Officially, he still trails Babe Ruth's record of 714 home runs.

The Braves won the game in the ninth when Mike Lum walked with the bases loaded. Darrell Evans added a two-run home run and Ron Swoboda had a pair of hits and one run batted in.

Cliff Johnson stroked three hits and drove in two runs for Houston, while catcher John Edwards had two hits and two runs batted in.

In other exhibition games, the Cincinnati Reds topped the Chicago White Sox 3-1; the St. Louis Cardinals trimmed the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-4; the Montreal Expos tripped the New York Mets 4-3; the Detroit Tigers dominated the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-2, and the Chicago Cubs clipped the San Francisco Giants 9-6.

Also, the San Diego Padres stopped the Milwaukee Brewers 7-4; the New York

Yankees bombed the Baltimore Orioles 18-3 in eight innings; the Boston Red Sox dropped the Minnesota Twins 7-2; the Kansas City Royals pounded the Texas Rangers 12-1, and the California Angels defeated the Oakland A's 7-2.

Indications are that the hitters are still ahead of the pitchers, as home runs figured prominently in the outcome of four other games.

Ted Sizemore and Ken Reitz connected in the Cardinals' victory over Los Angeles, although Jim Wynn had given the Dodgers a 4-3 lead in the sixth inning.

Thurman Munson had four hits — including a home run — while Bill Sudakis drove in five runs for the Yankees.

John Mayberry contributed four RBI, on a home run and three singles, to the Kansas City triumph.

Orlando Cepeda and Carl Yastrzemski hit two-run homers to spark Boston's sixth win in seven exhibition games.

The Reds beat the White Sox on Merv Rettenmund's sacrifice fly, which scored Dan Driessen in the fourth inning.

Cubs' third baseman Bill Madlock raised his batting average for the spring to .612 with two singles, while Jerry Morales and Billy Williams socked three hits each. A three-run, eighth-inning homer by San Diego catcher Bob Davis led the Padres past Milwaukee. Randy Elliot had three hits and Darrel Thomas homered for San Diego. John Briggs homered in the first inning for Milwaukee.

Sandy Alomar broke a 2-2 tie with a double and Rudy Meoli socked a bases-loaded, two-run single in the Angels' victory over Oakland.

The Expos held off the Mets after taking leads of 2-0 and 4-2.

Enactment Of Amnesty Plan Doubted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of Congress' first inquiry on the subject says he doubts amnesty for Vietnam war deserters and draft evaders will be enacted this year.

"These three days of hearings have shown grave differences over the issue," Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., said in an interview. "I just don't think we're close to resolving it, that's all."

Kastenmeier said he does not think it is likely that his House Judiciary subcommittee will put out a bill this year and said there has been no movement in the Senate on the issue.

He denied public speculation that the politically volatile issue of amnesty will be put off because of November's congressional elections, saying amnesty can win a congressional vote as well as lose them for him.

Proposals were varied during the Kastenmeier subcommittee's three days of hearings.

The sharpest contrast came at Wednesday's final hearing with Reps. Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y., and Ronad V. Dellums, D-Calif., proposing near total amnesty and the Pentagon urging none.

Identical bills by Abzug and Dellums would grant automatic unconditional blanket amnesty to deserters, draft resisters and nonviolent war protestors and set up an amnesty board to determine other war-related violations to get amnesty.

"These young men have already paid a huge price for this exercise of conscience," Ms. Abzug said, contending they suffered exile, underground existence and in some cases jail.

"They should not be penalized further for their refusal or inability to support an illegal and unconstitutional war and what many now view as the most immoral war in our history."

Privacy Bill Under Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — A newspaper's traditional freedom to obtain and print criminal records would be curbed severely by proposed bills aimed at guarding individual privacy, a Senate panel has been told.

Spokesman for three national news-media associations advised caution Wednesday in the consideration of bills intended to protect the right to privacy for restricting access to the national computerized criminal records maintained by the FBI.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the constitutional rights subcommittee, said such information would remain available from court records and from what individual policemen choose to tell reporters.

All three panelists disagreed and John R. Finnegan, chairman of the Freedom of Information Committee of The Associated Press Managing Editors Association told Ervin:

"I believe this legislation would discourage any cooperation that we now have in getting access to public records.... That policeman is in no way going to tell our reporters anything at all because he's staring a $10,000 fine in the face."

Finnegan, who also is executive editor of the St. Paul Dispatch and Pioneer Press, said that while the purpose behind Ervin's bill and that of a similar measure drafted by the Nixon administration is laudable, there is a danger that the public right to know may be eroded.

Harold W. Andersen, president of the Omaha World-Herald and vice chairman of the American Newspapers Publishers Association, cited several examples in which he said his newspaper could not have performed its "journalistic job" had not arrest and conviction records been available.
